"IMPORTANT TO WORLD AT LARGE"

Prince Konoye Makes Startling Prediction

PEACE PROPOSALS FROM MARSHAL CHIANG WILL NEVER BE ACCEPTABLE

London, May 9.

Mr. A. C. Moreing, Conservative Member for Preston, asked in the House of Commons to-night whether the Government was aware of the fact that Japanese authorities were refusing to allow British railway officials to inspect the Shanghai-Nanking line on behalf of British mortgagees of railway revenues, and were themselves selling passenger tickets on the line.

The questioner asked what steps were being taken to stop this serious breach of the Loan Agreement.

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied that he was aware of the refusal to allow inspection of the line. With regard to the sale of railway tickets, he understood that permits to travel on the line were issued by the Japanese military authorities, and that permit-holders had to pay their fares to the Japanese.

The British Ambassador to China, Sir Archibald Kerr Clark Kerr, has urged the Japanese authorities to ensure the safeguarding of British interests in the line. Sir Robert Craigie, the Ambassador to Tokyo, has also taken up the matter, and has asked the Japanese Government to afford an early opportunity to representatives of British mortgagees to inspect and survey the line, and to take necessary measures to safeguard the interests of British bondholders.

Mr. A. V. Alexander, Member for the Hillsborough Division of Sheffield, asked if this was one of the "vested interests" in which Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, had referred. Could Britain, he asked, rely that there would be no selling of the Chinese people for vested interests?

In reply, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said that Mr. Alexander could rest assured that the British Government would consider (Continued on Page 4.)

HITLER LEAVING ITALY

Rome, May 9.

Signor Mussolini, who had seen the Fuehrer off, followed in another special train.

Il Duce's train having overtaken that in which the German Chancellor was travelling, Signor Mussolini was able to welcome Herr Hitler when he arrived in Florence.

The splendour of modern Italy lived again in honour of the German dictator. Florence was in its gayest colours, which were enhanced by bright, spring sunshine.

Philippines May Deport Thousands Of Alien People

Manila, May 9.

The Secretary for Labour has ordered the arrest and possible deportation of 11,000 aliens residing in the Philippine Islands.

They will be charged with overstaying their landing permits. Seven thousand Chinese are affected by the decision. (United Press.)

ETHIOPIA'S DELEGATES ACCEPTED AT GENEVA

Geneva, May 9.

After a secret session lasting three hours, the League Council decided that the Ethiopian delegation would be allowed to be present at the table of the Council when the Ethiopian question was being discussed, on condition that the presence of the delegation would be without prejudice to the question of principle, and subject to the validity of their credentials.

A statement at 11.30 a.m. by Lord Halifax, the British Foreign Minister who is leading the Empire delegation, will be followed by a long speech by Dr. Wellington Koo of China on the general situation in the Far East.

The League Council has decided that the Chinese appeal will be heard in public to-morrow.

It was also decided that there should be no resolution or recommendation on the subject of Abyssinia, but only declarations by individual members of the League. (Continued on Page 4.)

JAPAN'S LOSSES SET AT 350,000

More Than Million Men Landed In China So Far

Hankow, May 9.

Since the beginning of the war in July last year, the Japanese have landed 1,100,000 troops in China.

They have suffered 350,000 casualties.

These estimates are made to-day by a Chinese military spokesman, who expressed the belief that the remaining Japanese forces in China were insufficient to hold the long lines in Shantung.

"We are doing our utmost to lengthen this line, for the longer it becomes, the more scattered and disorganised will be the Japanese forces trying to maintain it."

The spokesman expressed the opinion that the Tientsin-Pukow Railway would continue to be the main front for some time.

"Should the Japanese decide, however, to concentrate their main push in, let us say, Shansi, then Shansi will become second Shantung, and the Tientsin-Pukow area will become a second Shansi, where the Japanese troops will be forced to give back all but a few isolated points."

"They have had to do this already in Shansi, because the long bottleneck on the Tientsin-Pukow railway in Shantung has forced them to withdraw all available forces from other provinces." (United Press.)

Anticipates Recovery Of Business

Basle, May 9.

An interesting economic analysis of the present meeting of the Administrative Council of the Bank of International Settlements, made to-day by the Vice President, Dr. J. W. Beyer (famous Dutch financial expert), examines the reasons for the economic and business revival in the first half of 1937 and the recession in the second half of the same year.

Dr. Beyer's analysis compares the crisis of 1929-32 with present world conditions, and expresses the view that to-day there is much more hope of a quick recovery.

The analysis concludes by alluding to the fact that currencies of an increasing number of countries are adjusting themselves to levels which may be maintained on a permanent basis. (Reuter.)

BRITISH RAILWAY INTERESTS IN CHINA IN DANGER

Japanese Allegedly Sell Fares on Mortgaged Nanking-Shanghai Line

Kyoto, May 10.

Declaring that the new war situation in China was "objectively more important than the occupation of Nanking," Premier Prince Ayamaro Konoye yesterday predicted major military developments within the course of the current month.

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, the Japanese Prime Minister told newspapermen on his arrival here from Tokyo to attend memorial services for Emperor Komei, great grand-father of the present monarch, who ruled from 1848 to 1867, may "sue for peace" as a sequel to Japan's new military action.

The apparent deadlock in the Sino-Japanese hostilities, Prince Konoye asserted, had been reported in an "exaggerated" manner abroad. As a result, he continued, the new Japanese operations would have "important significance" in the world at large.

INCIDENTS CANNOT BE AVOIDED

Shanghai Conditions To Blame

London, May 9.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, Labour Member for the Kingswinford division of Staffordshire, asked in the House of Commons to-night what steps were being taken to prevent repetitions of recent incidents in Shanghai between Japanese troops and officers and men of the British Services.

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied that incidents of the nature mentioned were Should the regime under Gen. Chiang Kai-shek sue for peace, the Prime Minister said, Japan would not be able to accept any proposals because of her declaration of January 16 not to deal with the Hankow government leader.

Marshal Chiang, Premier Konoye went on, may reconsider.

The Prime Minister believed there would be no alternative left for the Kuomintang regime than to be merged into the new Chinese government, with which Japan has announced her intention to co-operate under the anti-Communist banner.

always liable to occur in the conditions ruling in the Shanghai area. The British Government was doing its utmost by negotiation and remonstrance to avoid a recurrence of such incidents. (Reuter.)

Japanese Strike Swiftly at Lunghai Railway

CAPTURED BY INSURGENTS—These war-bedraggled soldiers are Loyalists taken prisoner by the Insurgents who recaptured the long fought over Spanish city of Teruel. The Insurgents asserted that Loyalists "in great numbers" were deserting Government trenches in the Teruel sector. Since then many Britons in the International Brigade have been killed or captured. There may be some in this group.

CHINESE CONTINUE TO HARASS REAR OF INVADING ARMY

No Hesitation Admitting Enemy's Recent Gains

Hsuechow, May 10.

Having failed in their repeated attempts to capture Hsuechow, the Japanese command is reported to have changed its tactics on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway front.

A new southward drive by heavy reinforcements from Lincheng and Tsining, with Kweiteh on the Lunghai Railway as objective, has been launched by the Japanese.

Meanwhile, the main Japanese force on the north bank of the Hwai River is advancing vigorously toward Mengcheng, about 80 kilometres north-west of Hwaiyuan, by the Mengcheng-Hwaiyuan highway. After reaching Mengcheng, the Japanese expect to push directly northward to close in on Kweiteh.

Temporarily the Japanese troops on both the north and south sectors of Tientsin-Pukow Railway and east of the railway line are taking the defensive.

The Japanese from Tsining have been halted at Kiasiang. A Chinese mobile unit is attacking their rear to harass their advance.

Sanguinary fighting has been raging along the Mengcheng-Hwaiyuan highway since May 6. Lungkang has been taken by the Japanese. The Chinese are holding their lines about four miles east of Mengcheng.

Large units of Chinese guerrillas west of the Hwai River have now swung into action to menace the rear of the Japanese attacking Mengcheng. (Central News.)

Denies Chinese Claims

BRITISH CONSUL HIDES IN RICEFIELD

Canton, May 10.

Although the British flag was prominently displayed on the roof of the express train in which the British Consul-General at Hankow, Mr. S. Moss, and Mrs. Moss were travelling, the party had to leave the train a few miles outside Canton and take to the fields, when an air raid alarm was sounded at 8 o'clock this morning.

The train arrived at Canton at 7.35 a.m., delayed by the air raid.

Four planes flew over Tungshan, but it is believed that no bombs were dropped. Chinese reports that heavy anti-aircraft fire brought down one of the raiders are not yet confirmed.

Delay in the arrival of the train caused Mr. Moss to miss the 8 a.m. steamer for Hongkong, and he will probably take to-morrow's steamer.

Two Japanese women and one Japanese child who were also passengers in the train made a hectic dash from the station to the wharf, and managed to scramble aboard just as the ship was casting off. They looked pale and worried, but stated that they had a pleasant journey from Hankow, the Chinese train officials showing them every kindness. A military guard was placed on the wharf at Canton to assure that no harm came to the refugees.

Meanwhile, the air alarms still rang throughout Canton. (Reuter.)

LEAGUE MUST BE PREPARED FOR WAR

Churchill Urges "Covenant Army" Be Mobilised

London, May 9.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in a speech at Manchester to-night, outlined proposals for making the League of Nations an all-powerful weapon against aggression and aggressors.

He said the plan envisaged would ward off the devastation and horror of war. It lay in a single sentence: "Arm and stand by the Covenant of the League of Nations."

Mr. Churchill suggested that Great Britain and France should say to the smaller, menaced States: "We are not going to help you if you are not going to help yourselves. Are you prepared to take special service in the defence of the Covenant?"

"If we could rally ten well-armed States who were bound to resist aggression we would be so strong that all danger would be ward off," declared Mr. Churchill.

"The Danubian and Balkan States could be mopped up one by one, but together they would display an enormous strength."

Mr. Churchill also mentioned Soviet Russia, Poland and the Baltic and Scandinavian countries as possible supporters of such a plan. "I do not mean that we should encircle Germany with a ring of hostile Powers. We ask no security for ourselves that we are not prepared to extend to Germany."

"Let her join the club and share its privileges and safeguards."

"The alternative to adoption of the course suggested is to give Germany her colonies, with a free hand to spread the Nazi system in central Europe."

"After an interval we would be drawn into war as an antagonist of an overwhelmingly powerful combination of Nazi states. We would find ourselves without a friend." (Reuter.)

Jacket and Skirt Contrasts

LOOKING back at the Paris Collections from this distance of time enables us to see the new modes in their true perspective. One of the fashion high spots that shine up most distinctly and most persistently is the contrast-colour jacket and skirt vogue. This is a convenient and practical idea which imaginative women will be quick to appreciate and adopt, for with a little ingenious planning two suits and a frock can be arranged to look like several. Result: effect of that variety which most women seek but comparatively few can afford.

WE were very impressed by Creed's interpretation of this new mode, both in this day and evening models. On the left of the sketch you see one of his exquisitely tailored dinner ensembles—the yellow ottoman silk jacket in the most delicate honey shade; the long, slim skirt, black. He employs this same colour scheme for the town suit on the right—the jacket of whipcord edged black braid; the skirt, black faced cloth; the blouse, softest shiny black satin.

Soups From Fish Stock

WHEN cooking fish for kedjeree or fish cakes, never throw away the liquid. It may be used as the basis of any one of the following delicious varieties of soup:

To make parsley and fish soup, infuse a bay leaf in a quart of fish stock for 10 minutes, then strain the liquid, and add to it a pint of boiling milk.

Melt 2 ozs. margarine in pan, and mix in 2 ozs. flour without browning. Gradually add liquid, stirring well to prevent lumps.

When boiling, add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, and pepper and salt to taste.

Fish and Rice Soup

Put a quart of fish stock in a pan with a tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon white peppercorns, 1 onion, 1 carrot (both sliced), 2 cloves, and a small piece of whole ginger, a few shreds lemon rind, and a teaspoon of salt.

Simmer gently two hours. Strain, then return to pan, and add 2 tablespoons whole rice, well washed, and simmer 40 minutes. Just before serving add 1 dessertspoon chopped parsley.

Curried Fish Soup

Measure the liquid in which the fish was boiled, add an equal quantity of milk; pour into a saucepan, and bring to the boil. Mix a little corn-flour and curry powder to a paste with cold milk, stir this into the boiling soup, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Just before serving add some finely chopped parsley.

How do you give them their pocket-money?

GIVING is an art that very few people know how to practise. And the giving of pocket-money is even more than that. It is a science, and one which parents should study very carefully.

After all, fifteen years of pocket money for youngsters, perhaps twenty years, must leave a definite mark on the receiver.

In which way that mark will show on your child's character is entirely in the parents' hands.

"HOW" to give is the great question that faces you, and in order to understand that better, let me first explain "how not to give."

Scene: A little village in Kent where I spent a weekend with friends. Ann, blonde, quick-tempered and aged eight, rushes in: "Father, my bob, please!"

Father frowns. "Well, why don't you go to mother?" Ann, blue eyes flashing: "But mother said you would give it to me."

Father reluctantly produces a shilling: "You'll spend it all on ice-cream, anyway," he sighs.

by Olga Illner

Five minutes later Pat enters, stolid, realistic and five years old. His allowance is sixpence.

"If you're a good boy," says father to him, "you'll put this sixpence right into that savings-box and in a few years' time you will have lots and lots of money."

And, elixir, sixpence has disappeared in the savings-box, leaving a rather resentful and disappointed Pat staring after it.

Moral? When you have fixed a debt which she hardly ever spends a penny of must be paid without grumbling. And make it a free, unconditional gift instead of trying to put over beyond a child's imagination.

When you have fixed that allowance you must stick to it. So much and no more.

BUT what about emergency? That unexpected football game for instance? No doubt there is little disciplinary value in an allowance which is ignored.

What then is there to do? Johnny has spent all this week's money on constructing a model yacht. Very wise spending, too, thinks father who does not wish to cramp Johnny's style by putting a bolt to imagination which takes such useful shape.

"Johnny will be a spendthrift!" sighs mother. "Look at Janet! Why she hardly ever spends a penny of her pocket money."

A bad sign, indeed. I always prefer the child who spends every penny he has got to the one who doesn't know how to spend.

Vanity Note

It's quite hard to attend to small jobs in the house every day and yet have smooth, well-cared-for hands. Here's a new paste to your rescue.

Rub it well into the skin—it becomes absorbed as easily as the finest cream—and set about your tasks. When you're finished, wash your hands in warm soapy water and any dust or dirt that has adhered to them will roll away.

It is antiseptic and just the paste your husband will appreciate if he's contemplating spending a morning under the car!

ALFRESCO MEALS

By A HANDLER

WHETHER you go afoot, on wheels, or on foot in these first days of summer, you cannot escape the food problem.

This fact was brought home very vividly last weekend, when what should have been a perfect picnic was spoiled by my hostess's ill-chosen contents of the picnic basket.

Sardine sandwiches that have been exposed to some degree of warmth, unprotected by grease-paper can be rather revolting when produced for lunch! That was one discovery we made.

A good piece of advice then is: Always wrap every article of food in greaseproof paper. Whatever your hot drinks, be sure they go into flasks. Whether it's tea, coffee, chocolate, cocoa, or just hot milk, keeping it hot is the important point to remember.

Next, don't forget your paper-mache "crockery." There is a wide variety of picnic equipment on the market, at very little cost, and this adds enormously to the comfort of the meal. Too often a picnic anticipated as a treat is, in actual fact, an ordeal.

Some Practical Hints

Here, then, are some practical hints for your out-of-doors meals:—For a tramp over the hills and fields pack your knapsack with an eye to weight. Every ounce should yield the maximum return in nutrition.

This is what I put into my knapsack on my last jaunt:—Brown bread sandwiches with assorted fillings of lettuce, cucumber, egg and cheese. Wholemeal biscuits and cheese. A packet of fruit and nut chocolate and a flask of orange juice. (This time I used the flask to keep the liquid cold.)

With the addition of such fruits as oranges, apples and bananas, this is all that is needed for the ideal picnic-basket.

If, on the other hand, you are one of those who have a rooted dislike of carrying things, then it is possible—with a little care—to take a pocketful of nourishment. A small flask of milk, a packet of biscuits and a bar of chocolate will see you through for many miles.

The great secret is to make all your eatables impervious to the air. Proper wrapping is half the battle with a successful picnic meal. I have known hostesses who put up the most delicious of delicacies—pate de foie gras sandwiches for instance—which came out at lunch time hard, dry, and completely unappetising.

Lastly, always take your meal in the shade. In this country we are often tempted to be greedy of sunshine, but a picnic meal in the sun almost always proves a mistake.

BRITAIN SPENDS HUGE SUMS FOR NAVY AND MECHANISED ARMY

Determined To Protect Her Frontiers

By Joseph Grigg, Jr.,
United Press Staff Correspondent

(Editor's Note: Great Britain, with wars being fought close to two vital parts of her empire, is spending a staggering sum on armaments, Joseph Grigg, Jr., of the London bureau of the United Press writes in another dispatch on war preparations of the European powers.)

LONDON.
GREAT BRITAIN, FOR THE NEXT WAR AT A RECORD PEACE-TIME RATE, IS SPENDING NEARLY £8 ON ARMAMENTS THIS YEAR FOR EVERY PERSON IN THE BRITISH ISLES. STANLEY BALDWIN TOLD ONLY HALF THE STORY WHEN HE SAID "OUR FRONTIER NO LONGER IS AT THE CLIFFS OF DOVER BUT AT THE RHINE" WITH WARS RAGING NEAR GIBRALTAR AND HONG KONG. GREAT BRITAIN NOW KNOWS THAT THE FRONTIER OF HER EMPIRE IS AS WIDE AS THE WORLD ITSELF.

She is determined to spend and spend until that frontier is protected.

As usual, most of the money will go to the British navy which guards the empire's lifeline.

There are 517,000 tons of warships under construction now, including five 35,000-ton battleships, five aircraft carriers, 10 large cruisers, five cruisers of 5,000 tons each, 30 destroyers and 18 submarines.

It is expected that 60 vessels will be put into service between April, 1938, and March, 1939.

Afloat, Great Britain will be the world's strongest power. But there are two other vital matters that will worry her when war comes—how to get food and how to protect London, the world's most vulnerable target, against air raids.

She intends to solve the food problem the same way she solved the U-boat problem in the World War. She will rely on an elaborate convoy system and will arm her merchant men.

Protection of London is not so easy, but out of her tragic World War experience, Great Britain is making progress.

Any air fleet that starts against London will run into a "balloon barrage"—a protecting line of anchored blimps from which heavy steel cables will dangle. The danger to raiding air men will be more psychological than physical. The "balloon barrage" may force them to fly higher than they normally would do and thereby detract from the accuracy of the bombing.

Thirty million gas masks are in storage for the civilian population and 10,000,000 more will be manufactured. Two anti-gas schools are training volunteers while a general training school for "Air Raid Precaution officers" opens soon.

THE BOILING WAKE of the battleship Warspite as she turns sharply at full speed to avoid attack during the combined exercises. A ship of 30,000 tons, she has a speed of 25 knots.

"CATACOMB FORTS" TO DEFEND HER SOIL

(Editor's Note: Along the eastern border of France stretches the strongest line of forts in the world. Behind the forts stands what experts still consider the best army in Europe. Ralph Heinzen, Paris bureau manager of the United Press, describes in the following dispatch how France is preparing for the war that many European statesmen consider to be inevitable.)

By Ralph Heinzen
(Copyright, 1938 by United Press)

PARIS.
EIGHT MILLION FRENCHMEN ARE READY TO SEIZE RIFLES AND BURROW INTO "CATACOMB FORTS" TO DEFEND THE SOIL OF FRANCE.

THIS NATION, RAVAGED TWICE BY INVASION IN THE LAST 68 YEARS, HAS ARMED TO THE HILT. SHE DOES NOT INTEND TO BECOME THE BATTLE-GROUND OF THE NEXT WORLD WAR IF STEEL AND MEN AND MILITARY INGENUITY CAN PREVENT IT.

More than half of every franc collected in taxes is turned over to the army, navy and air force. Despite the swift changes in military strength because of the rearmament race, France's army still is judged by experts to be the best in Europe. The fear that haunts every Frenchman is another invasion from the east. Out of that fear has developed the Maginot Line, a $80,000,000 system of underground forts that guards every inch of the Swiss valleys.

Thousands of men are working building roads leading out of the gates of Paris, wide enough to accommodate eight lines of automobiles. Using those roads, the 3,000,000 inhabitants of the capital could turn Paris into a deserted city within a few hours.

Against land attack, France considers herself impregnable. She counts on her own and the British navy to guard her coastline. Like all nations on the crowded continent of Europe, she is vulnerable to air attacks. That is why the general staff has taken extraordinary precautions to protect the civilian population of Paris and other cities against air attack.

Every office building in Paris must be equipped with steel or wooden shutters so that no variant gleam of light will offer a target for air raiders.

Buses are equipped with curtains so they can be darkened. Air raid cellars have been built in courtyards of the foreign ministry, the ministry of war and all other important government buildings. France, if attacked, could maintain an underground government indefinitely.

For 11 years the Bank of France has been building gold vaults, an eighth of a mile deep in places, under a subterranean lake. War materials factories, once concentrated in a 10-mile belt around Paris, have been decentralized and located in 100 cities.

As this dispatch is written, 20,000 young men—clerks, salesmen, office workers—are preparing to go underground to brush up on their knowledge of the mazes of the Maginot Line. Many of these military reservists will not see the sky for two weeks. They will take some of their meals live stories below the surface of the ground, and when they go back to their jobs another group of reservists will move in. Those young men are the backbone of an army of 8,000,000 which France could mobilize immediately on the declaration of war.

More than any other European country, Russia is self-sufficient when it comes to food and war materials.

Almost every kind of mineral needed to equip an army and navy lies buried somewhere beneath her soil, although much of it is undeveloped. She grows no rubber but contends that she now is manufacturing synthetic rubber and that it is being widely used.

One of the great grain-growing nations of the world, Russia had a good harvest in 1937 and undoubtedly could feed herself if she went to war.

Air raid precautions have been taken in all large cities, but they seem to consist chiefly of propaganda and in efficient gas mask stunts rather than a serious attempt to provide shelters and mask protection for civilians.—United Press.

How to know GOOD WHISKY when you taste it

—by Johnnie Walker

Next time you order a whisky, sip a little before you add the soda. Of course you must allow for it tasting stronger, but because you are tasting it by itself your palate can more easily tell the difference between a really good whisky and one that is not quite so good. You will notice a certain roughness in poor whiskies. But in a really good whisky like Johnnie Walker you will find a "roundness" that mellows and tones down the fine spirit. Observe, too, in Johnnie Walker that faint peatiness of taste which is one of the greatest charms of Highland whisky — one of the reasons why you should always ask for Johnnie Walker by name.

LUNG HAI RAILWAY

Tientsin-Pukow railways and South China area.—United Press.

Japanese Weakened

Hankow, May 9.
Referring to Chinese guerrilla activities in the vicinity of Peiping, General Hsu Pei-ken declared today that Chinese forces had attacked Laipei, Kuo-chien and Luliho, along the Pinghain Railway, on April 29, Lukochiao, Mentoku and Tungchow on May 4 and 5, and Chinglungchiao on May 7.

At Chochow, 1,000 Manchukuo troops had deserted to the Chinese forces, and the total Japanese forces in the Peiping and Tientsin areas at present was only three regiments.

"Insufficiency of troops is beginning to tell on the Japanese everywhere, and they now realise that they must give up huge tracts of previously conquered territory if they want to concentrate large forces anywhere, such as on the Tientsin-Pukow front," said United Press.

Evacuating Shansi

Hankow, May 10.
The Japanese evacuation of South Shansi and the massing of almost the entire Japanese forces in China for the battle for Hanchow represented the highlights of the military situation, declared a Chinese army spokesman today, reviewing developments during the past week.

Comparing the present Japanese invasion to the Mongol invasion of the Thirteenth Century, the spokesman stressed the impossibility of any foreign power conquering China, since the Mongol garrisons scattered throughout China later were either wiped out or compelled to surrender. Reviewing the situation in south Shantung, the spokesman said the main body of Chinese forces in the Tangchow sector had circled around Tancheng and were at present approaching Linyi. A Chinese column operating west of Tancheng had prevented the Japanese there from forming a junction with the Japanese forces north of Pihshien.

Japanese Halted

The main battle on the south Shantung front, the spokesman stated, had taken place east of Tancheng. The Chinese counter-attacks on May 3, advancing seven miles, while the Chinese wings were closing in with a gap of only two kilometres separating them. The Chinese left flank, south-west of Yihshien, had fallen back slightly but the Japanese advance had been altered and there was no change in the situation at Hanchow, where the Chinese and Japanese were opposing each other across the Grand Canal.

Continuing, the spokesman said the Japanese were missing 20,000 men in west Shantung for a drive towards Kweichow, west of Hsuehchow. On the Peiping-Hankow railway front the Japanese totalled only one division which was scattered at Shihsiang, Ponal, Fengchiu and Taming. The main body of the Japanese in Shansi were holding the Tungchow-Pukow railway between Tancheng and Fengchiu, with small detachments at Fengchiu, opposite Tungchow.

Falling Back

One division in west Shansi had fallen back towards Fengchiu following the Chinese occupation of Bishih and Chungyang.

The Japanese are rushing reinforcements to Suiyuan from Chian to stem the Chinese advance on Kweisui. The spokesman said they were also massing four divisions south of Hsuehchow.

Another column, advancing northwards along the railway, had been stopped south of Kueichang while a column proceeding towards Kweichow, by way of Hwaiyuan, Mengcheng and Pochow, had been halted at Mengcheng.

Yangtze Situation

Reviewing the situation in the Yangtze valley yesterday, a Chinese spokesman said that Japanese troops had occupied Chaochiao, opposite Wuhu, on April 30.

Chinese troops from Hefei advanced eastwards to meet the Japanese, and severe fighting was now in progress at Wanhsien, north of Chaochiao. The situation, pointed out the spokesman, was not important, as the total Japanese strength was relatively small.

Japanese troops from Yenchen who were advancing northwards along the sea-coast have been halted at Koungheng, south of Fuling. Japanese claims to have occupied Fuling on May 6 are believed to be premature, as Chinese troops had communicated to headquarters the information that on Monday the situation at Fuling was still obscure. Turning to the situation south of the Yangtze, the Chinese spokesman declared that Chinese forces were attacking Fuyang, on the north bank

Hsuehchow, May 10.
It is learned from usually reliable sources that the Japanese military authorities in Tokyo have given permission to the Japanese forces on the south Shantung front to use poison gas and other chemicals on a large scale.

Nazis Behead Dutchman
On Secret Charge

Amsterdam, Apr. 22.
After lying in a Nazi jail for more than four months under sentence of death, Willy Cammans, a 44-year-old Dutchman, was beheaded today.

Nobody not even his family, was told what his crime was, merely that he had committed "high treason."

Cammans was born in Germany of Dutch parents, and served in the German army as a boy, without losing his Dutch nationality.

After the Armistice Cammans set himself up as a shoemaker at Venlo, on the German border of Holland, and married a Dutch woman.

He often went to Germany on business, and on one of these trips he was arrested and thrown into prison. He did not come out again, and his wife heard not another word from him.

The execution took place in face of official protests by the Dutch Government, and the help of a Dutch lawyer was refused. The trial being secret, no report ever reached Holland, and even the death sentence was made known to Mrs. Cammans in a roundabout manner.

of the Chientang River, and the capital of Chientang province.

In Kiangsu, the Chinese were attacking Liyang and Yihsing, and latest reports indicated they were only four miles from the latter city. At Liyang they were approaching the city wall, thus interrupting highway communication between Nanking and Hangchow.—Reuter.

Pope PiusSequel To Attack
On Swastika

Rome, May 9.
A reply to the recent attack on the swastika flag by His Holiness the Pope was made by Signor Benito Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, this morning.

Addressing 500 newly-married couples last week, the Pope deplored the appearance of the Nazi swastika in Rome. "The swastika is certainly not Christ's Cross," he declared.

"We should like to say to the Father of all us Catholics that it is very dangerous to speak of the Cross of Christ, and wave it above us if it were a weapon," said Popolo d'Italia this morning.

"One would then find oneself in the threatening and grinding company of Masonic money-lenders and Bolsheviks, without even having in one's hand the whip with which to drive them from the Temple of God, and to remain alone, desperately alone, praying, praying, praying!" "You may understand how necessary it is for you to pray, pray, pray for the mercy of the Almighty in His largeness," His Holiness concluded his protest last week against the beflagging of Rome with the swastika.—Reuter.

Moscow, May 9.
The Soviet Government has rejected the British Government's Note of Protest at the detention of Rose Cohen, a woman Communist who has been undergoing solitary confinement in a Russian prison since September last year.

The Soviet reply to the British Note emphatically declared that Rose Cohen is a Soviet citizen. The British Note to the Soviet stated that Britain took a very grave view of the unsatisfactory state of affairs revealed by the Cohen affair, which disregarded the elementary principles of international comity.

Rose Cohen has been for many years foreign editor of the semi-official Moscow Daily News. She was born in London in 1894 but married a Russian.—Reuter.

Predicts Change In War Situation

Kyoto, May 9.
Prince Konoye, the Japanese Premier, in a press statement today emphasised that the military situation in China was developing exactly as planned, and was now assuming an importance probably even greater than that attached to the occupation of Nanking.

Despite "great exaggerations" of the situation abroad, the Japanese Premier predicted a considerable change in the situation before the end of the month.

Japan was proceeding slowly with its policies towards the new Chinese regime in Nanking and Peiping. There may be some friction in the Cabinet and with Councilors, but everything would eventually be smoothed over.

"Japan is determined to co-operate with the new China," he declared.—United Press.

Peiping, May 10.
Mr. Wang Keh-min, head of the Provisional Government, returned here from Tokyo by air last night.

Whilst in Tokyo, Mr. Wang interviewed many members of the Japanese Cabinet on such subjects as economic co-operation, the union of the Peiping and Nanking Provisional Governments, the Japanese recognition of the two Governments.—Reuter.

Day Of Victory

London, May 9.
Reports of mediation in the Spanish Civil War were emphatically repudiated by Senor Del Vayo, the Spanish Government delegate to the League Council meeting, in a statement issued at Geneva last night.

According to the official Spanish Press Agency, the statement declares that nobody has been authorised to open conversations or negotiations for the conclusion of an armistice in Spain.

No armistice or mediation is possible between the Independent people of Spain and the German and Italian invaders.

The statement concludes by emphasising that the Spanish Republic will resist until the end—namely, until victory.—Reuter.

"SURRENDER" FRANCO'S
ONLY PEACE TERM

Berlin, May 9.
Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, former German Ambassador to London, who returned to Berlin recently from Burgos, declared today that unconditional surrender was the only solution of the Spanish Civil War acceptable to the insurgent leader, General Franco.

This was made clear in an official statement by the Foreign Office, in reply to Geneva reports of a Loyalist move for an Armistice and peace.—Reuter.

Geneva, May 9.

The two Ethiopian delegates were unexpectedly present as observers, but did not attend the secret meeting of the Council which followed.

Lord Halifax will make a statement at to-morrow's initial public meeting regarding the Anglo-Italian Agreement, after which the question of the Spanish appeal will come before the Council.—Reuter.

ETHIOPIA NOT SUBDUED

London, May 9.
Emperor Haile Selassie, who is fighting to obtain continued League recognition of his claim to the Ethiopian throne, issued a statement in London to-night.

Revolts and resistance, he declared, have prevented Italy from establishing military control in at least three-fourths of the total area of Ethiopia. Italian domination was confined to areas of a 30-mile radius around villages and towns.—United Press.

FRENCH ADMIRAL VISITS MACAO

Macao, May 9.
Paying a courtesy call at the port of Macao, the French sloop Dumont Duville with Vice Admiral Le Bigot, Commander-in-Chief of the French squadron, arrived from Hongkong today at 8 a.m. Salvoes were exchanged between the visiting warship and the port, and Lieut. M. Pinto, A.D.C. to H.E. the Governor, called on board to convey the respects of the Governor.

The distinguished visitor landed at 10 a.m. and after inspecting the guard of honour made an official call on His Excellency.

A large company of the landing officials attended the luncheon given at Government House in honour of the French admiral, and H.E. Dr. Tamagnini Barbosa was among the guests of the French admiral on the Dumont Duville.

The French warship will leave for Hongkong to-morrow morning.

EUGENICS REQUIRE PUBLICITY

Hongkong League Elects Officers

The necessity for more publicity with regard to the position of birth control in relation to what was actually happening in Great Britain was stressed by Mrs. P. S. Selwyn-Clarke, wife of the Director of Medical Services, at the second annual meeting of the Hongkong Eugenics League yesterday.

Hon. Mr. M. K. Le took the chair and among those present were Prof. W. I. Gerrard, Mr. E. M. Raymond, Hon. Mr. S. and Mrs. Caine, Rev. G. K. Carpenter, Miss C. Lum, Dr. P. Ruttonjee, Dr. E. Ho Tung, Dr. E. W. Kirk, Dr. A. Woo, Mrs. G. F. Hole, Mr. W. A. Zimmermann, Mrs. T. H. Shin, Mrs. Lum Tsz-yan, Dr. S. Y. Cheng, and Dr. L. O. Hunter.

Mr. Le said: I did not know I was expected to say anything to-night because I felt there was really nothing for me to say in view of the very lengthy and comprehensive report you have received. I would like, however, to take this opportunity of saying a word or two as to the circumstances in which I found myself in this place.

When Prof. Nixon left Hongkong it was desirable to find another President with some technical knowledge and I was asked to fill the gap pending the appointment of a permanent President. When the time comes for submitting to you the name for election, and if you adopt the recommendations of the nomination committee, I feel sure you will agree we have succeeded in finding one eminently suitable to be your Chairman for the coming year.

When I attended one or two of the executive meetings I very quickly came to realise what a tower of strength to the League Mr. Forrest had been throughout, and so when he had to leave Hongkong on further I confess I felt rather depressed from the point of view of this Society. But life has its compensations and soon after Mr. Forrest's departure we were overjoyed to welcome a very enthusiastic supporter of our League in the person of Mrs. Selwyn-Clarke. It is not, I think, a disclosure of anything secret when I tell you that we owe it to her an interesting report. I think I am right in saying that the whole of the report was written by her. I am very glad to announce to you that Mrs. Selwyn-Clarke has consented to act as secretary and I feel sure you will acclaim that nomination in due course.

The Chairman then proposed the adoption of the report and accounts, which was carried unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The following were elected officers: President, Prof. W. I. Gerrard; Vice-Presidents, Hon. Mr. M. K. Le and Dr. Arthur Woo; Secretaries, Mrs. P. S. Selwyn-Clarke and Mr. Kwok Chan; Treasurer, Mr. R. A. Forrest; and Mr. W. A. Zimmermann. Executive Committee.—Mr. D. J. Sloss, Rev. G. K. Carpenter, Dr. E. Ho Tung, Mrs. G. F. Hole, Dr. L. O. Hunter, Dr. E. W. Kirk, Dr. J. H. Montgomery, Mr. A. S. IMPRESSED BY IGNORANCE

Opening the discussion on the salient points of the report, Mrs. Selwyn-Clarke said she had been impressed by the general state of ignorance in Hongkong with regard to the position of birth control in relation to what was actually happening in Great Britain.

"We have tried," she said, "to get some publicity for this report in the Hongkong press, not only because the League needs far more publicity but because it does seem necessary to try and inform the citizens of Hongkong, both foreign and Chinese, of what is actually happening in Great Britain. I would like to welcome any suggestions of members of the League who have been here longer than I am as to how we could make known the circulars received from Home. I tried to summarise them by a letter to the S. C. M. Post, but I feel that this alone is not enough. It is a problem which I feel is worthy of tackling during the coming year."

"The other question is the very small attendance we have. We are in a most extraordinary position: we have a great deal of money which we are quite unable to spend and we have most influential people connected with this League. We have an extraordinary large amount of money to spare and yet we have a clinic with an average attendance of six, eight and 10 patients every afternoon. We have spent practically no money but we have asked Prof. Nixon in England to send us supplies which are normally used in birth control clinics at Home and these will take some of our money. Nevertheless, we are making a very poor show at the Violet Peel Health Centre every Thursday with such a small attendance. We have doctors, nurses and midwives and yet we are unable to do only very little work indeed. I feel we should function to full capacity and when this is achieved we should then open further clinics in other parts of the Colony. I feel that unless we can get at least three clinics we can hardly be satisfied with the work we have here."

MEDICAL SUPPORT

Prof. Gerrard said he felt a great deal could be done if the support of the medical community could be obtained. He was not pessimistic, he said, as to the future if the League could get their help.

Mrs. Hole suggested that the League should co-operate with the St. John Ambulance Brigade, saying that it had a number of clinics in the outlying districts and if one of their nurses could be trained to do the work, tremendous good would be done.

Dr. Eva Ho Tung, of the Tsang Yauk Hospital, said although she could not speak of the Government attitude she felt that there was a great need for the work the League was undertaking. She had sent a number of cases to the League's clinic, which was in charge of Dr. Hunter.

The Chairman remarked that the League should endeavour to extend its activities during the year and he felt sure the Committee would explore all possibilities with this end in view.

Dr. Kirk and Dr. Woo associated themselves with the remarks of Prof. Gerrard. Both said they were wholeheartedly in sympathy and desirous of helping the League in any possible way. Dr. Kirk added they should be assured that the present situation of the League would be entirely altered within the next 12 months in view of the complete confidence they had in their new secretary, and such support he felt sure would come.

Women's Feet Are Growing

St. Louis. Women's feet are getting larger. Records of a large shoe manufacturing company here revealed that the average size of woman's shoes has increased more than a full size in the last decade. Stylists said the increase is due partly to the trend toward more comfortable clothing, but principally because modern women were better fitted when children.

THE TORTURED MILLIONAIRE

His genius for utilizing all he heard was astonishing.

No One Could Bamboozle Him

Every day his secretaries fed the blind client with thousands of facts. They emerged as articles, directions for the running of the business, cables to editors.

He developed a more acute sense of judgment over the men he talked with than when he had his sight.

NO one could bamboozle him.

He would pull a letter out of his pocket and ask his companion to read it. One never knew what was behind these requests. He was behind trying to find out whether a previous person who had read the letter to him was keeping something back or not.

He would detect the least variation or untruth in any voice, and then take cunning steps to verify what you had said.

For thirty-four years Pulitzer's life went on like this. Now generations of secretaries worked at the task to drugging his unrelenting brain with ever new doses of facts. They were pumping facts into him until just seven hours before, on October 29, 1911, the tortured millionaire closed his eyes for the last time.

The latest developments in the European sphere leaves the mind groping for the real intentions of the powers, dismayed by the inconsistencies of diplomacy and altogether uncertain of the future trend. But taking the situation as a whole there are one or two hopeful aspects; indications of a changing mental attitude which may encourage the exponents of peaceful policy. Since the German occupation of Austria and the delicate balance which resulted, there has been a general retreat from violence and an apparently genuine attempt on the part of one "belligerent" nation to reach a compromise with a suspected rival. Italy has signed an agreement with Great Britain, and for the first time in years these two nations are on terms which do not cause misgivings. But the agreement was only won at the cost of a retreat from the moral stand taken by Great Britain, and to many is unsatisfactory for that reason. Yesterday despatches from Europe told of Lord Halifax having failed to win unanimous recognition at Geneva for Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia. When it is remembered that there were many who would have had Britain go to war to prevent the Italian occupation of this territory, the attitude of the Government is a little disconcerting. Had the intervening developments not been known to an observer he must have been dumfounded by this actually astonishing change of policy. And, it must be said, he probably would have been not a little shocked had he been an Englishman. However, the word of the Chamberlain administration must be taken that the present attitude is for the best. And indeed, if by recognising the presence of a stone wall a nation can avoid butting its head against it, the course is probably wise.

In the later developments in Europe the immediate effect of this changed British attitude is seen. Signor Mussolini is trying to discourage Herr Hitler from any course which will involve the use of force in correcting the Czecho-Slovakian minority trouble; or so despatches indicate. Signor Mussolini is apparently offering certain inducements, such as diplomatic support for German aims, if Germany steers away from war in Eastern Europe.

THE TORTURED MILLIONAIRE

By JOHN
HAMPDEN

I HAVE just finished reading the life story of a millionaire with whom no beggar in the gutter would want to change places.

The name of the millionaire was Joseph Pulitzer. His strange life of suffering is told in a fine book, "An Adventure With a Genius," by Alleyne Ireland, just published by Lovat Dickson (78. 6d.). Pulitzer was a man who achieved world fame as a newspaper publisher.

Afflicted

In His Prime

He was the real founder of modern journalism. His newspapers, the St. Louis Post Dispatch and the New York World, cried abroad new ideas and new principles which outdated the dull columns of their contemporaries.

Instead of flattering the politicians they criticised them. They exposed corruption, they fought furious campaigns for public reforms.

BUT though Pulitzer became a millionaire and a world figure through his papers, fate took away with one hand what she gave with the other.

In the first place, Pulitzer developed a terrible nervous malady which made the slightest sound a torture to him.

In the second place, he became blind.

These afflictions struck him in the prime of life.

Such an attitude is not in keeping with what British people have been led to expect from Italy, but if Britain can change her tune, so can the fiddlers of Rome. And if it is less martial, so much the better. So it is hardly fair to charge the diplomats of these two countries with inconsistencies when, had they stubbornly stuck to their discords, someone probably would have been driven to violent measures.

Granted that there has been this much progress towards appeasement, the time has not yet come when British people can sit back with folded hands and "let matters take their course". There are still large and grave problems to be faced and decided. The Czecho-Slovakian quarrel is only one; the Spanish affair is another; the Polish-Lithuanian dispute and the whole of the Eastern European scene require careful watching. Britain, and other nations who seek to keep the peace for themselves and for others, must be alert to lend what aid they can to statesmen everywhere who are trying to extricate their affairs out of the tangle which wars, treaties and depressions have created. The League of Nations, even its warmest adherents admit, is virtually helpless now. It is for individual Governments to act; and they must act without confusing issues and, if possible, without injuring anyone's feelings. If past experience causes a little apprehensiveness on the part of lesser powers—and they have some cause for alarm—it can only be hoped that their just claims will be respected. For if Europe has progressed towards some sort of permanent understanding it would be a criminal thing to relax the efforts which have brought even these trivial tangible results.

JOSEPH PULITZER

him. He thought it was indigestion.

An oculist told him that he had burst a blood vessel in one eye.

It developed into the separation of the retina of both eyes.

Pulitzer retired from the world, a blind man with wrecked nerves. He lived in strange sound proof houses in New York, London, Mentone and in his yacht.

Many people forgot he was alive.

His nervous affliction coloured his whole life.

PICTURE him as he drifts about the seas at a snail's pace in his yacht Liberty, suffering.

Every noise pierces his inmost being as if with red-hot irons. Meal times are a torture to him.

The pleasant tinkle of a spoon against a saucer makes him wince like a dog threatened with a whip.

The gurgle of water poured into a glass, the striking of a match, send a pang right through his body.

He turns pale and breaks into a cold perspiration at some sound which to most people would have been scarcely audible.

Aroused By

Footstep

Every one in the yacht must wear rubber-soled shoes, because the scraping of leather sets his teeth on edge. The part of the deck under which he sleeps is roped off because a solitary footfall will ruin his night.

Each door which gives access to the rooms above his cabin has a little brass plate. On the plate is cut a legend: "This door must not be opened when Mr. Pulitzer is asleep."

Once almonds suddenly disappear from the dessert at dinner. The chief steward hesitatingly confesses to an inquirer that Mr. Pulitzer cannot endure the sound of an almond being snapped in half.

HE had the greatest difficulty in sleeping.

A curious ceremony was performed each day after lunch. Mr. Pulitzer would put on his pyjamas or perhaps merely take off his coat and shoes and lie down.

A secretary, one of the obedient throng, would be summoned to read him some play or book.

At a certain point Pulitzer would say, "Softly." Then after a little, "Quite softly." This was a sign that Pulitzer was going off into a doze.

Lulled To Sleep

By A Mumble

The secretary would then make the words more and more indistinct until he sank into a kind of mumble. This mumble was very difficult to acquire, and new secretaries had agonies in learning it.

The mumbler would keep Mr. Pulitzer in a state of dozing. The secretary could read a novel or whatever he liked so long as he kept up this noise with his lips—and he might have to do it for hours on end.

The slightest change in the pitch of voice, a sneeze or a cough, would awaken Mr. Pulitzer with a start, and an unpleasant quarter of an hour would follow.

EVERY door in his houses in London, New York and Mentone shut automatically and silently and was draped with heavy curtains to prevent the slightest noise from filtering through.

His bedroom in New York was unique.

Although his bedroom appeared to form part of the house it did not in fact do so. It stood upon its own foundation and was connected with the main structure by some ingenious device which isolated it from all vibrations originating there.

It was of the most solid construction and had but one window, a very large affair consisting of three casements set one inside the other, and provided with heavy plate glass.

This triple window was never opened when Mr. Pulitzer was in the room, the ventilation being secured by means of fans situated in a long masonry shaft whose interior opening was in the chimney and whose exterior opening was far enough away to forbid the passage of any sound in the streets.

Noise-Proof

Bedroom

At intervals inside this shaft were placed frames with silk threads drawn across them for the purpose of absorbing any faint vibrations which might find their way in.

In this bedroom, with its triple window and its heavy double door closed, Pulitzer enjoyed as near approach to perfect quietness as it was possible to obtain in New York.

CHOOSING an hotel in which he could bear to stay was a heavy task.

A secretary would inspect half a dozen before settling on one. He would have to spend two or three hours in each, finding out certain things, for experience had proved that hotel managers' assurances were not to be trusted.

He must find out not only whether there were any noisy guests, whether the windows rattled, whether the floor creaked.

Even the route from the station had to be carefully considered. A trial run was made in a car. If the route followed a tramline, if it went by a noisy spot like a children's playground, if it passed over a rough piece of road, the whole route had to be revised.

THE extraordinary thing is that with his blindness, with his wrecked health, with his almost maniacal nervous affection, Mr. Pulitzer was one of the greatest workers the world has ever seen.

He kept five or six secretaries on the run the whole time. They were necessary to keep him informed of the progress of his papers and of every world event. But they were also necessary because Mr. Pulitzer could not bear to be left to himself for a minute. Some one must be talking to him all the time.

Endless Meal

Of Facts

All the seen world was cut off from Pulitzer. His secretaries must be his eyes, must tell him of everything, must re-create the whole world for him.

He took each of them in turn to talk to him. If they stopped for even a minute his nerves were all a-jangle.

And not light talk either. Pulitzer demanded an endless meal of fine chopped facts. Facts about the news, the arts, the world, politics, plays, and others—anything so long as they talked.

The secretaries would work from early in the morning until late at night to prepare for their talks with their chief.

Some would be reading through the mountains of Press cuttings which were sent him from America. Some would be picking "human items" out of the newspapers to provide him with topics of conversation.

Some marked passages in magazines to read out to him. Some would even be reading novels to relate the plot to him.

EACH secretary would go tremblingly on duty to the task of informing or amusing Mr. Pulitzer. He would wail up the meal they offered him. They feverishly looked in their pockets to see if they could not find another cutting to read to Mr. Pulitzer. Silence. Then—

"No, no. Don't let us stop talking or reading," Pulitzer would cry. "I must have something to occupy my mind all the time no matter how exhausted I am."

If he was bored with the fare provided, he would suddenly say: "My God, is there much more of this?"

A Patient

Listener

Then the secretary would have to bring his story to a hasty conclusion and retire in disgrace, leaving another to take on the Herculean task of amusing Mr. Pulitzer.

If he was interested—his interest was endless.

He would patiently listen while some one told him the whole plot of a play of Shakespeare. When they had finished he would ask them the plot of another play, and so on, far into the night.

When they had exhausted their repertoire, he would ask them if they had read Shakespeare's sonnets.

SOMETIMES Mr. Pulitzer would want to laugh. Then they would get a whole year's file of comic papers, read them through in the small hours of the morning and serve up the dish to Mr. Pulitzer next day.

One secretary had a box containing hundreds of funny stories in his cabin. He would take out a handful and slip them in his pocket whenever he was summoned to attend the great man.

But they had to be careful to tell Mr. Pulitzer nothing that was too funny. In his disordered state of nervous laughter caused him some pain.

P. C. ACCUSED OF WIFE-MURDER

ALLEGED TO HAVE PROPOSED TO GIRL

Dramatic Evidence In Court Hearing

A GIRL went into the witness-box at South-Western Police Court recently and declared that the man in the dock—Police Constable William Teasdale (32), of Voltaire Road, Clapham, who is charged with the murder of his wife Ruby, had proposed marriage to her.

The girl, Miss Dorothy Maude Boud, a secretary, of Cambridge Street, Victoria, said she met Teasdale at the beginning of this year and knew him as a single man. She had met him on numerous occasions since the introduction.

He proposed marriage on February 24 and she accepted him. The date of the marriage was fixed for May 28.

On March 3 she and Teasdale went to the Victoria Palace. When they got to the lobby of the theatre a woman spoke to her. She did not know the woman at that time, but now knew her to be Mrs. Teasdale.

Mr. Vincent Evans (prosecuting): What did she say to you?—She touched me on the arm and said: "Are you with him?" I replied, "Yes." She said, "Do you know he is a married man and I am his wife, and he has a baby?"

Did you make any answer to that?—I cannot remember if I did. I was too dazed. He turned to her and said, "Don't be silly," and to me he said, "Come along, darling."

"NOT MARRIED"

Did you make any reference to him as to what had occurred while you were in the theatre?—He asked me if I believed it. I do not remember very much about it. I know I wanted to get out and we left at the first interval.

Miss Boud said that Teasdale accompanied her home and remained until 2.30 a.m. discussing the matter.

"I asked if it was true that he was married and he said: 'No,'" she said.

OCEAN BED TO BE EXPLORED

Piccard's Plan To Descend 15,000 Ft.

Brussels. Prof. Piccard, of Brussels University, who gained fame by his balloon ascents into the stratosphere, is now planning to explore the bed of the ocean.

Dr. William Beebe, an American scientist, has already worked at a depth of 3,000 feet in a bathysphere attached to a cable. Prof. Piccard hopes to reach a depth of 15,000 feet.

Explaining his plans to-day, Prof. Piccard said he would have a bathysphere unattached to any cable. The bathysphere will be supported in the water by a cylinder containing paraffin. Ballast will be fixed underneath. It will consist of small steel shot, and will be controlled by magnetism.

PHOTOGRAPHING FISH

As the bathysphere will be lighter than water, it will be weighted with ballast for the descent. Prof. Piccard thinks that an hour and a half will be necessary to reach a depth of 15,000 feet.

Pressure of the water will keep the bathysphere at this depth, use being made of the ballast when necessary. Exploration could be made with the help of the ocean currents. Fish could be photographed in this region of total darkness with the aid of artificial light.

Experiments for a year are contemplated to select the most suitable metal for the sphere and the type and strength of the glass for the windows.

The first descent will probably be made in the Lake of Geneva. Later there will be others off the Canary Islands, where the sea has a depth of 10,000 feet. Prof. Piccard will be accompanied by a biologist. He will himself act as pilot.

The National Fund for Scientific Research is assisting in the undertaking.

She Kept Guns In Memory

Versailles. Mme. Marie Beaudouin, seventy-four-year-old widow, in whose home were found two German machine-guns, which she said she kept in memory of her husband, killed in the great war, was fined 1s. 8d. by a Versailles court.

Mme. Beaudouin, weeping, told how her two sons died in the war. The eldest son's officer gave her the guns as souvenirs of his bravery, she said.

AUTHOR DEFENDS HIS BOOK ON STANLEY

Photographs And Letters To Back His Claim

A 71-year-old London housekeeper—William Hoffmann—has written a remarkable account of his adventures with H. M. Stanley on the famous expedition across Africa for the relief and rescue of Emin Pasha in 1887-1889.

Mr. Hoffmann believes he is the sole survivor of that heroic enterprise to save the last representative of Egyptian rule to hold out against the Mahdist forces.

Doubt on this story entitled "With Stanley in Africa" and published by Cassell and Co., Ltd., has been thrown by a review published in a weekly periodical.

It declares that the name of William Hoffmann, who is described by the publishers as Stanley's personal servant, bodyguard and his closest friend, nowhere appears in the gigantic record of the expedition left by Stanley.

It also draws attention to some discrepancies in dates.

"GIVEN TO ME"

A New Chronicle reporter saw Mr. Hoffmann in his flat over the offices of which he has been housekeeper since 1902.

On the wall were two photographs—one of Stanley signed by himself and one of Lady Stanley signed by her.

From a faded leather case Mr. Hoffmann took a silver medal struck by the Royal Geographical Society for members of the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition. His name was engraved on the back.

"That was given to me by Stanley himself," said Mr. Hoffmann.

Letters from Stanley and Lady Stanley to Mr. Hoffmann were also produced. Those from Stanley, which were couched in affectionate terms, began "My Dear William," and expressed solicitude for his welfare.

Mr. Hoffmann has also preserved a letter from H. M. Johnston written in 1904, in which appears the sentence: "The late Sir Henry Stanley frequently mentioned to me in conversation your services to him in that journey across Africa."

WENT TO BERLIN

Mr. Hoffmann described to the New Chronicle how Stanley left him £300 in his will with the words: "To William Hoffmann, now sous-lieutenant in the Congo State Services, the sum of £300 as an expression of my esteem and admiration for his continued services in Africa."

"I was introduced to Mr. Stanley at a London hotel in 1884, when I was 15," said Mr. Hoffmann. "He asked me to be his servant. I spoke French and German well and he thought this would be of service to him. I went to the Berlin Conference with him and to America on a lecture tour. Later I accompanied him on the Emin Pasha Expedition."

"After I left him I obtained an appointment with the Belgian Government in the Congo on his recommendation."

Mr. Hoffmann has documents proving these facts. Asked why he had not written the book until now, he said: "Last year I was very ill, and thought I would put these things on record. If there are discrepancies they have arisen through poor memory or lack of care in writing or typing."

Relieving themselves of the weight of heavy war equipment, young Nazi soldiers arriving in Vienna dropped helmets, trench knives and other material in a pile and then greeted the Austrians who inspected their new masters. This scene was duplicated hundreds of times after the annexation of Austria by the Germans.

FORGOT REMINDER TO REMEMBER

DOCTORS WARN BLONDES

Blondes, beware! For rheumatism will get you if you don't watch out. So says a famous Harley-street surgeon who told a London newspaper that his research had proved:

(a) Fair-haired people stand much more chance of becoming rheumatic than brunettes.

(b) Unhappiness is one of the main causes.

DOCTORS WORRIED

He will tell his theories to the International Congress on Rheumatism which meets at Oxford soon.

Medical authorities are getting very worried about the scourge.

It costs Britain £25,000,000 a year, and 40,000 die annually from the heart disease it causes.

FRANCE VOTES £50,000 FOR THE ROYAL VISIT

Paris. Amid great applause, the Chamber of Deputies to-night unanimously voted a special grant of 8,000,000 francs (£50,000) for the reception and entertainment of the King and Queen when they visit Paris in June.

M. Paul-Boncour, Foreign Minister, said that the Government would make preparations to receive King George VI. and his Queen with all the splendour that is due to them and to the friendship that links our countries.

Vegetarian Eases Conscience

Astoria, Ore. A conscience-stricken vegetarian recently sent $1 to the manager of a store here for edibles which he "munched."

In the same letter he explained, "I have had many chances to nibble a few grapes, a stray carrot, or a prune that was near the edge of a box of produce, consigned to your company" while working for a Portland transport company.

VILLAGERS REPORT MASSACRE

Terrible Reprisals For Raid Near Macao

Macao, May 9. A large number of women and children who reached Macao this morning from Pak Chiu, on the western border of the British colony, told of a massacre by the Japanese of at least 2,000 villagers during the last two weeks.

A number of men from a few places in Pak Chiu, which is a minor division of Chungshan district, carried off to the Japanese at San Cho Island, in conjunction with some of the villagers of San Cho Island itself, resulting in the loss of the lives of some Japanese soldiers.

As a reprisal, the Japanese bombed the villages in all parts of Pak Chiu as well as firing on them from aeroplanes, followed by shelling by warships. This was followed by a landing on some of the islands. The Japanese forced the people to carry loads and do other work for them, the Chinese being invariably shot in cold blood at the end of each day's labour.

Some of the people managed to hide from their persecutors and have sought refuge in Macao.—Our Own Correspondent.

INSURGENTS ADVANCE

Canadians Captured In Fighting

Hendaye, May 8. The insurgent command reports that motorized troops drove a double-pronged attack down the coast to within 23 miles of Castellon de la Plana. The reports state that troops under General Aranda trapped two companies of Loyalists and a section of the International Brigade, taking 400 prisoners, most of whom were new Canadian volunteers.

The insurgents were entrenched along the rocky river bed, of the Rambla de Seguer, thus encircling the companies. It is said that General Aranda has reached the outskirts of Tortosa, with the result that the insurgents now hold a 62-mile strip of the coast.

Fighting broke deep in mud the insurgents to the south of Morella continued the drive to break the eastern wall of the Loyalist salient.—United Press.

LOYALIST SUCCESS

Madrid, May 8. A Loyalist war bulletin issued last night states that the Loyalists occupied several enemy positions much war material and making numerous prisoners.

The enemy counter-attacks in the Morella sector were repulsed.—An

400,000 CHINESE MASS FOR BATTLE

Japanese Headquarters, May 9. Four hundred thousand Chinese troops to-day are massed north of the Chinese "Hsienburg Line" area along the Lunghai Railway in preparation for the crucial battle for the possession of Hsuehchow, Japanese intelligence officers estimate.

The disposition of this vast manpower is reported as follows: north-west of Hsuehchow 53,000 men, near Kichang, south of Tientsin in south-western Shantung, 24,000 men. In the Pukien and Tai-chow area, on the Shantung-Kiangsu border, 24 divisions.

Among the latter, 14 are under the command of Gen. Tang En-po, the remainder all being Central troops.—Domei.

TOWARDS LUNGHAI

Hankow, May 9. Chinese military authorities admit advances by Japanese columns striking towards the Lunghai Railway from the south. Japanese troops operating in the north-west across country from Fengtai reached the north gate of Wenhow, 45 miles north-west of Fengtai, about noon to-day, according to Chinese reports. The intention of these troops, evidently, is to push on to Pochow (Foshen) just south of the Anhwei-Honan border and from there drive north to cut the Lunghai Railway at Kweihai, which is about 100 miles west of Hsuehchow. Fighting is now taking place as the Chinese try to prevent the Japanese from capturing Mengchen.

A Japanese column, advancing northward near the coast of Kiangsu is also making progress. After capturing Fuling the Japanese sent a detachment westward in the direction of Tientsin. Its objective is believed to be Hwaiyang, on the Grand Canal.—Reuter.

JAPANESE ADVANCE CHECKED

Hotel, May 8. Striking back at the advancing invaders, the Chinese forces removed the Japanese threat on Hotel by retaking Hsiaochoen, six miles north of Tientsin, to-day.

Hsiaochoen is the second important town on the Tientsin-Hotel highway recaptured by the Chinese forces in two days. The other strategic point, Tokoku, about three miles north-east of Hsiaochoen, was retaken from the Japanese yesterday.—Central News.

CO-EDS FAVOUR SHORT SKIRTS

San Jose, Cal. A campus fashion survey at San Jose State College on the question of skirts revealed that co-eds are almost unanimously in favour of short skirts and the men in favour of longer ones.

Insurgent aeroplane was shot down and was destroyed by fire within the Loyalist lines. The pilot was killed.—Frank Ocean.

TO-MORROW AT THE ALHAMBRA

HARVEY WANTS TO MEET FARR

But First Will Take A Rest

London, Apr. 9.
Len Harvey, new British cruiser-weight champion, stated yesterday that he is to have a two-month rest, and then he is to have a fight with Tommy Farr for Farr's British and Empire heavy-weight title.

"My left hand was damaged in Thursday's title fight with McAvoy, and is badly swollen, but a complete rest will put it right," he said. "Then I am going after the heavy-weight title. As soon as Farr likes to return from America he can have a match."

"The Board of Control recently nominated Ben Foord and Eddie Phillips to meet in the final eliminating contest for Farr's title. I am quite prepared to meet the winner. If necessary, before tackling Farr."

"Let me pay a tribute to McAvoy's great fighting," he went on. "I want it known that my injured eye was caused by a fair punch. It was a left hook. That did not concern me a great deal—it was my left hand that was the trouble."

McAVOY'S VIEW
McAvoy, who returned to Manchester yesterday, was of the opinion that he was unlucky not to have been awarded the decision.

"I am," he said, "willing to fight Harvey again for a substantial stake. I think I can regain the title."

Mr. Harry Levene, McAvoy's London agent, stated that he is applying to the British Boxing Board of Control for a scrutiny of the referee's score card, as he was greatly surprised that the referee awarded the fight to Harvey without first consulting his score card.

Great Mile By Schoolboy At The White City

Thrilling Half Mile

By J. P. Jordan

London, Apr. 11.
A brilliant mile by A. H. Chivers (Wycliffe), who knocked four-fifths of a second off S. C. Wooderson's record at the corresponding meeting five years ago, stood out as the finest feat accomplished at the Public Schools Challenge Cup meeting which concluded at the White City on Saturday.

Chivers is not unlike the world's record-holder, Wooderson, in build and effortless style of running. He allowed D. W. Parks (Ardingly) to take him along until the last lap, when he lengthened his stride, and moving with beautiful rhythm, won easily by 50 yards in 4min. 29sec.

Given normal development, Chivers should be a great miler in a few years' time.

Record was also beaten by a Green (Ampleforth) in the steeplechase, but otherwise the performances were about the average.

The biggest thrill of the afternoon was provided in the half mile, in which A. D. Buckland-Nicks (Berkhamstead) ran a splendidly judged race. After setting the pace he allowed first D. J. Mayall (Lancing) and then C. N. Jupp (Perce) to tear away in front, and receiving his own final spurt until the last 50 yards, he got home by inches.

FINE QUARTER-MILER
P. A. Soar (Epsom) is a quarter-miler of high promise. For a boy of 16½ years to win two heats on Friday in 53.3sec. and 53sec. and the final on Saturday in 52.3sec. is exceptional.

J. F. Lockwood (Queen Elizabeth's, Barnet), the difficult to win in the second successive year and should be heard of again, probably as a long jumper, while the hurdles went to the best stylist, J. M. Tanner (Marlborough).

This was rather an untidy race, as several hurdles were knocked over and Tanner himself was at fault early on, but he deserved his victory.

The weight putting was good and the pole vaulting fair. Salem (Germany) were weakly represented and lost the Challenge Cup after holding it for two years. Queen Elizabeth's and Kingswood tied for the cup.

The Finals
Half Mile.—A. D. Buckland-Nicks (Berkhamstead), 1; C. N. Jupp (Perce), 2; J. R. Park (University College School), 3; inches; 2min. 34sec.

Record.—G. L. Brown (Kingswood), 4th; John, 1; Roe (Dover), 2; J. L. Shuttle (Oundle), 3.

100 Yards.—J. F. Lockwood, holder (Queen Elizabeth's, Barnet), 1; N. Davis (Polytechnic), 2; R. J. B. Roach (Palmer), 3; Two feet, 16.4sec.

One and a Half Miles.—J. M. Tanner (Marlborough), 1; A. V. Kay (Rushall), 2; L. G. Smith (Laymer Upper), 3; Fifteen yards; 4min. 44sec.

Girl Of 13 Wins Rifle Contest

Down Curdridge way, in Hampshire, lives a thirteen-year-old girl who shoots bull's-eyes while her little friends are playing hopscotch.

Her name is Edna Dearlove. She had a thirteenth birthday party on March 3 and carried on the celebrations by winning the Southampton Rifle League's "Scalp" individual competition.

Who ever heard of a thirteen-year-old winning an important rifle shooting contest? She scored 88, two short of the possible. No stake, for Edna averaged 88.00 in fifteen matches prior to her thirteenth birthday.

It looks as though we have another Marjorie Foster (King's prize winner) growing up.

Shayes Making Sure Of Davis Cup Place

By Stanley N. Doust

London, Apr. 13.
The Davis Cup probabilities continued their trials against each other at the Melbury Hard Court Club, Kensington, yesterday, the results of which will undoubtedly influence the selectors in choosing the team.

Two, Messrs. Probble and Stowe (out of five), were watching, and I think their presence had a nervous influence on some of the players—particularly Filby—because he was less adventurous than on Monday and more patchy.

R. Shayes, in my opinion, is certain for a place in the team. Yesterday he beat Filby by 6-1, 6-4, 6-1.

In some respects Shayes reminds me of F. J. Perry in his cat-like quickness about the court, his manner of hitting on the forehand and his unerring anticipation. Filby seemed nervous. First of all he could not get a firm foothold and he blamed his shoes, and sent for others which obviously were not his. They had useful rope soles but appeared too slick to large.

The change made a difference for he played better lawn tennis in the second set and led by 3-2. Shayes, however, was his master yesterday, and Filby went down badly in the last set.

DOUR FIGHT
It took C. M. Jones from half-past three till just after half-past five to beat the Scotsman, D. McPhail, by 6-2, 11-9, 12-10. The feature about this match was the dourness of the fight rather than its quality.

Jones began well and McPhail badly and both suffered from the same complaint—they were too anxious to make the last point for a set or a match point. McPhail, by grim hanging-on, led by 5-4 in the second set and 15-40 on Jones's service in the next game. Then McPhail made two dreadful shots and lost his chance. Game for game till 9-11, when Jones took the lead and then held his own service for the set. The third set was similar except Jones at 9-8 led by 40-15 and threw away his chance of clinching matters with three very bad shots. And so they went on till 10-11. Jones broke through, and at 40-0 on his own service aed McPhail to win a close tie.

The two prospective doubles players, F. H. D. Wilde and D. Butler, had a nerve-racking match. Butler won by 6-2, 6-0, 4-0, 8-7.

PRECEDING CHAPTERS:
Mrs. Kilbourne, against the wishes of her family, has a habit of taking in tramps. Ambrose who had been chauffeur for a while, had been dismissed because his rickety old car had fallen into the ravine, and she insisted, despite his protests, that he stay and fill the vacant place.

Chapter Thren

Wade looked cautiously around the room. He drew a long breath. He was alone, at last. Where he didn't matter now. All he wanted was to get away from this house which seemed to be occupied by lunatics.

"Oh, no you don't!"

It was the voice of the butler. He reached him in a flash and found it was, despite that fact that Grosvener was creeping up on him, had clamped down on his head, a basket filled with flowers.

"Thought you'd get away, did you? Trouble with you sneak thieves is you don't think quick." Grosvener was snickering at him across the room. He held him firmly with one hand and managed with the other to get the telephone. "Police headquarters, quick," he shouted into the phone and then to Rawlins who was making an attempt to wrench himself loose: "Take care. You haven't a— Police Headquarters? Send men at once— Jerry dashed into the room and took the phone from Grosvener.

"I'm just waiting for your daughter, Yousee, I'm the new chauffeur."

"What's going on here," she demanded.

"This person was trying to make a get-away," said Grosvener. "And I thought, I could trust you," Jerry said to Wade. Then into the phone: "I'm sorry, we don't need any police today, thank you. Just a mistake—one of those things you know." Grosvener tried to protest. Jerry removed the basket from Wade's head before she answered.

"It makes no difference what you saw. He's our new tramp. We're bound to have one at least around the place, you know. Wade, I've appointed myself the judge of who stays, who goes. This one stays, and now—turning to Wade—" "Did you will take my word for it—although you say you don't know—that I didn't. If not it is your privilege to have me searched. I will not resist nor will I object."

"No one will search you. But just to satisfy my curiosity, will you tell me why you were trying to run away?"

"Just wanted to get out of here."

"That's gratitude for you! Here you have a chance for a new life, different from any you have ever known and you try to dodge taking it. Do you want to be a down-at-the-heel tramp all your life? I thought everybody had some little spark of ambition somewhere. Don't you want a different life? A more abundant life, as the saying is?"

She shook her head sadly as Wade answered that his mode of life had been of his own choosing and that, minor annoyances aside, it had satisfied him.

"Why you speak like a—well, not not the way most of our tramps do, if you did, I might relent and let you go. But now I'm determined. You're going to stay right here and you will give up being a hobo. Here, Grosvener, it's all settled. Now take him over to his quarters, see that he has a razor, soap, everything. And fish out the uniform which comes nearest fitting him. Well, what are you waiting for?"

"Only to say, Miss Kilbourne, that I'm leaving. This is too much." "You'll leave him, I hope you may and not one minute before."

Grosvener looked as if he were about to deliver a lecture on the constitutional rights, but he had just interrupted Wade, when Jerry interrupted to ask, pointedly, if it would be necessary for him to get in touch with his first wife. A look of terror was on his face, one of triumph on Jerry's.

"He's sort of a bigamist," she said in explanation to Wade.

Grosvener, as one who knew when he had gone down to defeat, started for the garden, muttering Wade to follow him. He seemed deep in thought as they crossed the garden, muttering that he would never forgive himself. Wade asked if he meant because he was a bigamist—at least "sort" of one.

"I was not referring to that. I meant that preventing your escape."

"Don't you like tramps?"

"I try desperately to love all of God's creatures, but I never did like tramps, and since I have lived here, I loathe them, one and all."

Grosvener, despite his feelings, was not one to shirk his duties. Having seen, in a few minutes he had assembled everything necessary to enable the dirtiest tramp to look well groomed. A shower, a shave, a shampoo, clean clothes—they were good things Wade thought, when he had finished dressing and looked at himself in the mirror.

Now, at last, he could telephone. He waited to the door and opened it to make sure Grosvener was not listening. No one was there. He turned to the phone and asked for a New York number. When the connection was made, an anxious voice asked him where he was. Anxiety turned to irritation when Wade answered that he was on the Pacific Coast and intended to be there for some time.

"Now, listen, Wade. You can't leave us in the lurch like this! You know what'll be to you if you don't show up tomorrow night! Of course you can make it—hop a ark. These papers are full of you—such reviews as authors and publishers dream of. Now don't pull the modesty, please, just let me, I'll be for the nearest plane."

"I can't get away. All I've turned chauffeur. No, I'm not crazy and I haven't had a drink in a couple of days. Sorry to have sent my regrets, but listen—I'd be walking out on the best stuff I ever ran

ACROSS LOTS

THIS AMERICANISM FOR A SHORT CUT, OR ROUTE, BECAME A FIXTURE IN OUR LANGUAGE AFTER BRIGHAM YOUNG, MORMON LEADER, THREATENED HIS ENEMIES WITH THE REMARK: "WE'LL SEND THEM (THE GENTILES) TO HELL ACROSS LOTS."

Danger of Being Cocksure

THERE are some gifted people whose minds are never troubled by doubts. They are able to take clear-cut hundred-per-cent. views on all questions, however complicated and difficult, and never find themselves at a moment's loss for an emphatic opinion.

These people are not the salt, but the pepper of the earth. They are not the material of which martyrs are made perhaps, but they are certainly the material that makes martyrs. It is the dogmatists who, all through recorded history, have walked their colours to the mast—and humanity to the cross.

We find them exultantly busy at the present moment in the dangerous arena of foreign policy. Half of them are fanatically convinced that Mr. Neville Chamberlain has played Judas to enfranchised democracy in Europe. The other half are just as fanatically persuaded that the Prime Minister has saved the world from a second and still more disastrous edition of Armageddon.

In the familiar words of the advertisement, it must be "grateful and comforting" to possess this kind of mentality. No doubts to torture conscience, no hal shades to baffle vision, no hesitations to impede action. Just a bull-necked impetuous certainty. These favoured mortals do not express opinions. They deliver judgments. They dwell in a perpetual state of ex cathedra infallibility.

And yet, even though they fail to realise the fact, these dogmatists are beset by tremendous perils. Their frame of mind lays itself so peculiarly open to auto-deception. They swallow every fragment of alleged fact, no matter how suspect its propaganda source, with elaborate and premeditated views. Any testimony contrary to their settled beliefs, even though it were as oracular as the voice of Moses from Mount Sinai, they brush impatiently aside as transparent bigotry.

It follows that such people exist perpetually in a miasma of perverted self-delusion. They are the easy gulls of all the plausible charlatans and confidence tricksters in Christendom and Jewry. They stand condemned to be the dupes of the sincerest opportunism and the tools of time. The rock on which they build their citadel is the impenetrable one of benighted ignorance.

This is shown by the fact that their dogmatism increases in exact ratio with the square of their suppressed uncertainty. The less they really understand about the subject under discussion, the more emphatic are they in their assertions about it.

It is this disastrous frame of mind, this attitude to life, which breeds the most fatal of all intellectual attitudes—the over-weening determination to believe implicitly what the victim of this hallucination wants to believe. It was this shut-eye fatalism that made us believe that Germany after the War had undergone a fundamental change of heart. It caused us to believe that, because we were war-weary, therefore the rest of Europe was pacifist.

by "An Old Stager"

the error which caused us to scrap our defence equipment. The supreme example of this deluded fanaticism is the League of Nations. No thoughtful person, worthy of civilised citizenship, can fall to be enamoured of that sublime conception. It may even be argued that, if civilisation is to stand up against the disruptive influences of sheer reactionary brute force, such an institution is a mere necessity.

But recognition of that fact, and sincere hope for its ultimate realisation, must not be permitted to blind progressive minds to the dismal fact that at the moment the League of Nations is a dangerous imposture. Until it can be given firm reality, and discharge the duty of policing the world as efficiently as we police our cities, not our trustworthiness, is to stand up as it would be to arm ourselves with dummy guns, planes, and tanks.

This does not mean that the noble idea must be jettisoned for all time. Only that, until we can build solid foundations round Geneva, we must put our trust in it as a disorganised as it would be to arm ourselves with dummy guns, planes, and tanks.

Unfortunately the tendency of emotionalists, whose hopes have been centred fanatically in the League, is to accuse anyone who ventures to doubt the League's immediate efficacy as being a traitor to humanity's sole means of salvation. It may take even longer to build a solid Geneva than it did to build Rome, and Rome was not, as the old adage informs us, built in a day.

There is not much room for argument as to what must happen if the nations can put their faith implicitly in the League and proceed to turn their tanks into lawn-mowers. It is a spiritual renaissance that must ensue. Geneva will become a firm reality only when, and not before, the people of all countries concerned are prepared to make as supreme sacrifices on behalf of others as for themselves; when the defence of alien hearths and homes is as sacred a duty for all as is the guarding of their own. Unhappily humanity seems still some distance from that degree of altruism.

This country is probably, even

Baby's Eyes Must Be Removed

Chicago, May 9.
A medical problem which all America has been discussing was decided to-day by a jury of twelve doctors, scientists and clergymen, who agreed on the desirability of an immediate operation on a five-weeks-old baby girl, Helaine Colan.

The baby girl has a growth in the head which is slowly moving towards her brain. Cure can be effected only by removing her eyes, thus presenting a problem whether death would not be preferable to lifelong blindness.

The baby is stricken with retinal blatoma—a cancerous tumour which creeps along the optic nerve towards the brain—in the left eye, with the right eye probably impaired in a similar manner.
Without an operation, the child would have lived for only five months at the most. An operation would necessitate severance of the optic nerve, with resulting blindness.

The distraught parents, a young
Chicago dentist named Herman Colan and his wife, threw the onus of making a decision on the jury, after whose decision the baby's left eye was to-day removed.

A Committee of eight X-Ray specialists will now examine the baby to determine the course of treatment for the right eye which, if too far affected, will also have to be removed if the baby's life is to be saved.—Reuter.

JAPAN SEES SIGNIFICANCE IN TREATY

Tokyo, May 9.
Referring to reports of possible
Italo-Japanese friction as a result of the Agreement between Britain and Italy, Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, made the following statement to the press to-night:
"There have been various reports purporting to give the impression that the Anglo-Italian accord will take its tolls from the Japanese Italo-German anti-Comintern agreement.

"Nothing can be further from the truth. Close co-operation between Japan, Italy and Germany is provided for in the anti-Comintern Pact, which cannot under any circumstances be affected by any agreement between Great Britain, Italy and Germany.

"Rather, the co-operation of Great Britain with Italy and Germany can

Devonport Seaman Killed In Dorsetshire

The identity of the rating, who was found shot dead on H.M.S. Dorsetshire when the cruiser was near Cairns, North Queensland, on her return voyage from Australia to Hongkong, has now been revealed by the Naval authorities.

He is Leading Seaman Robert E.
Dickinson, of Devonport.

The authorities here are still in the dark regarding the circumstances surrounding the death of Dickinson.
At present all that is known is that he was found dead as a result of a gunshot wound.

A coroner's court was conducted at Cairns, but its findings have not been divulged.
In the meantime the Dorsetshire, which had planned a leisurely voyage from Australia to Hongkong, is now speeding at 16 knots for a non-stop trip from Cairns to the Colony. The cruiser is expected here within a week, and immediately she arrives, a full enquiry will be conducted by the local naval authorities.

WORKERS SATISFIED

The two-month-old strike at the Chung Hwa Book Company plant was satisfactorily concluded to-day when 1,344 men went back to work.
They included 705 recalcitrant strikers who had held out for more money when their colleagues had already returned to work after a brief walk-out.

No further trouble is expected as the men now seem perfectly satisfied with conditions.

ARMED JUNK SEIZED

A Hongkong registered junk which was a miniature floating arsenal, proved a welcome haul for Japanese Destroyer No. 23, according to the report of the Master of the now missing craft.

Fong Cho-mun, 47, informed the police here that on May 5 he was sailing past the Sam Ming Customs Station in the Pearl River when an armed launch took off from the destroyer and a party carrying revolvers came on board. After a brief search, the crew was ordered into the sam-pan and told to row away. The junk was then towed to the destroyer and was not seen again.

On board the junk were five cannons, 200 lbs. of shot, 60 lbs. of gunpowder and 50 fuses to the total value, including the vessel, of $10,000.

CHINESE SWEEPING THROUGH SHANSI

ELIMINATING GARRISONS BY DEGREES

Laying Siege Where Japanese Cut Off From Outside Help

Tungkwan, May 10.
 Having succeeded in crossing the Yellow River, the Chinese in south Shansi are now relentlessly pushing north in a co-ordinated general counter-offensive on the Japanese forces there.

Crushing the enemy in a vengeful march, the attacking forces have already reached the areas along the Tatung-Puchow Railway. Fierce fighting has been raging between Yuntsi at the south-west corner of the province, and Linfen, to the north-east. It reached its severest in the night of May 8.

Chinese guerillas assisted the regular troops in damaging the Japanese communication lines. Several sections along the Tatung-Puchow Railway have been blown up, rendering Japanese military transport extremely difficult.

On the Yuntsi sector, the Chinese have reached a point about seven miles north of the city and are vigorously pressing on. In the early morning of May 9, large forces fought north of Yuntsi, with the Chinese gaining the upper hand ultimately. The Japanese in the walled city of Yuntsi, east of the railway station and are erecting defence works there. The Chinese are still besieging the city of Chungyang, south of Lishih, in central Shansi. It is reported that the Japanese Garrison Commander in Chungyang has been killed. All bridges along the highways leading to the city have been damaged by the Chinese, rendering Japanese support from outside impossible.—Central News.

Kingshanwei Recaptured
 Kihwa, May 10.
 Following a fierce attack launched by over 500 Chinese plain-clothes men, Kingshanwei, a town near the Kiangsu-Chengkang border on Hangchow Bay, was recaptured by the Chinese in the early morning of May 9, a belated report reaching here stated. The Chinese attack was launched on the night of May 5. The (Continued on Page 4.)

Jews Hear Anti-Nazi Speeches At Convention

Washington, May 9.
 President Roosevelt, in a message to the Jewish convention, declared "except insofar as we deplore the ill-treatment of human beings, the foreign tourists within the United States are no concern of the alien influences seek to undermine the foundations of our own institutions, we become definitely concerned."
 Sigmund Livingston, a prominent Chicago lawyer, addressing the Convention, accused Nazi Germany of spreading anti-Jewish propaganda in the United States.
 Mr. William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House of Representatives, the film star, declared that the United States, Great Britain, Ireland and other democratic powers, constituted a "body of public opinion invulnerable in their might against assaults from any or all of the totalitarian states."

JAPANESE ATTEMPT FAMILIAR STRATEGY

Claim Swift Gains On Lunghai Drive

Hankow, May 10.
 Chinese reports state that heavy fighting has been raging in northern Anhwei for the past 24 hours. It has been of a particularly see-saw nature, first the Japanese and then the Chinese gaining the upper hand. Fighting in the Mengcheng area, sixty miles northwest of Pengpu, has been most vicious. The Chinese forces finally captured the city yesterday.

The Japanese spear-head at Mengcheng is 10,000 strong. Supported by heavy artillery and a dozen bombers, the Japanese are endeavouring to cut the line of communications between Lunghai and Kweichow, and thus outflank the Chinese at Hsichow.

Meanwhile, only minor skirmishes are reported from the southern Shantung flanks.—United Press.

SWIFT PROGRESS CLAIMED

Shanghai, May 10.
 In a three-pronged thrust at the Chinese from the south, Japanese forces today were moving rapidly towards China's "Hindenburg Line" area extending along the Lunghai Railway.

Following the launching on May 4 of their offensive, that broke the comparative quiet prevailing in the southern Tientsin-Puchow sector since February, Japanese troops had scored gains of more than 50 kilometres along a wide front, straddling the railway line.

Near the sea, to the east, Japanese forces were in occupation of Fowning, taken on May 7. The central column today was pressing on Kueichow, on the Tientsin-Puchow railway, while to the west they held Mengcheng.

The capture of Mengcheng on May 9, a Japanese military spokesman told foreign correspondents here this morning, resulted in unitching the Chinese right wing from its moorings in the form of strong permanent defences. The Chinese, he admitted, had offered stubborn resistance before suddenly retreating from Mengcheng.

The spokesman revealed that two Japanese Army fliers—both of them lieutenants—had almost bombed their own infantrymen, so sudden was the Chinese retreat.

When swooping over the town, the flier, who believed Mengcheng to be still in Chinese hands, saw a large white cloth on the ground. Looking towards the western gate, they saw khaki-clad Japanese troops marching in.

Dipping to within 100 metres of the rooftops, the fliers exchanged greetings with the ground troops by waving handkerchiefs, the spokesman said.—Domel.

PLANES ASSIST

Shanghai, May 10.
 Assisting the Army's concerted push towards Hsichow, Japanese naval aircraft yesterday bombed the station, roadways and supplies at Hsichow, south of Hsichow on the Tientsin-Puchow Railway, a Japanese naval spokesman announced today.

Other aerial units attacked Chinese troops concentrated at Shanchen and neighbouring villages along the Lunghai railway, as well as Chinese freight trains, supply depots and marching columns.—Domel.

Japanese Bid For Air Record

Tokyo, May 10.
 Seeking to win the world's endurance flight record for Japan, the "Wings of the Century," a specially-built experimental monoplane took off from here at 5:09 o'clock this morning for an 80-hour test. The machine, capable of making a round-the-world flight in three stops, will cruise around a quadrangular course in Central Japan bounded by Kisarazu, Choshi, Ota, and Hiratsuka, all within a 100-mile radius of Tokyo. The giant, single-motored monoplane passed its ground and flight tests at the Haneda airport on April 17.—Domel.

CAPTURED BY INSURGENTS—These war-bedraggled soldiers are Loyalists taken prisoner by the insurgents who recaptured the long fought over Spanish city of Teruel. The insurgents asserted that Loyalists "in great numbers" were deserting Government trenches in the Teruel sector. Since then many Britons in the International Brigade have been killed or captured. There may be some in this group.

Shanghai Man Who "Died" In 1929 Still Alive?

San Francisco, May 9.
 A private detective agent has testified in the Federal Court here that William A. Chapman, an ex-clock in the U.S. Court in Shanghai, who was believed to have committed suicide nine years ago, is still alive and prosperous, and is living in Los Angeles.

Chapman served a three year prison sentence for embezzling U.S.$30,000 United States funds in China, and disappeared when he was released. The U.S. Treasury has carried out an extensive search for the missing man, because he was a vital witness to enable the Government to collect $30,000 from bond-holders who had guaranteed him.

Four of the five bondsmen are now dead and their estates have been liquidated. Government is now seeking $11,000 from Mrs. Carl S. Hittes, widow of one of the bondsmen. Mr. Hittes was formerly a lumber dealer in Shanghai.—United Press.

CZECHS FIGHTING ELECTION

Many Parties In Disturbed State

Britain Hopes To Mediate

Prague, May 10.
 With the lifting of the prohibition on political meetings which expired on Sunday and the formal announcement that the communal elections will be held in roughly 2,500 communes on May 29, the centre of political gravity has been shifted to domestic politics in Czechoslovakia.

The agitation for the elections is in full swing. No fewer than 21 party lists have been drawn up and the Czechs alone are split into 15 groups.

The National Union, that is the right wing block formed by the late Premier Kramarz and other Party leaders for the elections in 1935, is in a state of complete dissolution, having split into four groups, namely: The National Union, the Czechoslovak National Democrats, the National League and the Anti-Henlein Citizens Bloc.—Trans-Ocean.

London, May 10.
 The British Government yesterday informed the Soviet Government through the British Ambassador in Moscow, Lord Chilton, of the step taken by the British Government in Prague for bringing about a peaceful solution of the Sudeten German problem. Lord Chilton, according to reports from Moscow, pointed out that the British Government intends to establish contact with the German Government also for a discussion in this matter.—Trans-Ocean.

FOUR-POWER PACT'S CONDITIONS SETTLED

Berlin Reports Dictators In Accord

Berlin, May 9.
 Sources close to foreign diplomats say that Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini have agreed upon the conditions which Western Powers must meet before Italy and Germany will agree to any Four-Power Pact.

It is stated that the possibility of a "new Locarno" was discussed at considerable length by the two dictators, Count Ciano and Herr von Ribbentrop participating in the discussions.

The dictators are believed to have agreed that a Four-Power Pact would considerably strengthen European peace, but any such Pact must include, firstly, recognition by Western Powers of mutual Italo-German interests and the security of the Roman Empire; secondly, France and Great Britain must withdraw from Czechoslovakia and abandon attempts to limit German expansion eastwards; and, thirdly, the military alliance between France and Soviet Russia must be abandoned.

Nazi sources realise that the terms are hardly likely to be accepted by either France or Great Britain. However, they believe that cautious diplomacy might overcome many obstacles.

In the meantime, the Berlin newspapers remain silent regarding the possibility of a Four-Power Pact. Diplomatic and political circles nevertheless speak enthusiastically of the readiness of both Italy and Germany to enter into negotiations.—United Press.

CANADIAN BRIGADE SHATTERS INSURGENTS

Penetrates Deeply Behind Franco's Lines

Hendaye, May 9.

The remnants of two Canadian Brigades in the International Brigade reorganised by the Loyalists have penetrated deeply behind the insurgents' Mediterranean spear-head, and have seized positions dominating the highway terminus with Cuevas Devina.

A Loyalist report, which, incidentally, is denied by the insurgents, states that the surprise thrust carried the Canadian Brigade nearly 10 miles to the rear of General Franco's vanguard at Torreblanca.

In driving rain, artillery, trench mortars and heavy tanks joined in attacking the insurgents entrenched in the hill above Cuevas Devina. The Canadians charged the slopes in groups of ten, and suffered enormous casualties in reaching the summit.

They hastily fortified their newly gained strategic positions in anticipation of an insurgent counter-offensive which, however, has failed to materialise.—United Press.

Russian Cheka In Spain

London, May 9.
 Spain figured largely in the House of Commons at question time today. Asked if he was aware that branches of the Russian Cheka had for a considerable time been in effective control not only in the Barcelona and Valencia government's courts and prisons, but among the International and Republican troops on the Government side in Spain, the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr. H. A. Butler said that information in his possession did not confirm the statements in question.

The Prime Minister was asked if he was aware of the recent declaration of policy by the Spanish Prime Minister, Dr. Megria, and if the Government would seek to secure peace in Spain on the basis of such terms. Mr. Chamberlain said he had seen the declaration and, regarding the second part of the question, the Government was prepared at any time, at the request of either of the contending parties, to lend its offices with a view to settling the conflict. It was not in accordance with Government's policy to impose a settlement on either side.

Questions were also answered regarding claims for compensation from the Spanish insurgent authorities.—British Wireless.

Case Argued On Ancient English Laws

Guarantors Must Pay On Bond Breach

On behalf of His Majesty the King, the Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. M. J. Abbott, Assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for plaintiff, and defendants were represented by Mr. C. A. S. Russ.

Mr. Williams said defendants were sureties in a bond which was between His Majesty the King and one Li Sang. Sometime in October last, Li Sang, who had been granted a licence to become a boarding house under the Asiatic Emigrants Ordinance, 1915, and the Boarding House Ordinance, 1917, the Boarding House Ordinance, every applicant for a licence must enter into a bond with two sureties approved by the S.C.A. in the sum of $1,000. The licence was also to observe the rules and regulations.

The two sureties in this case were the defendants, who signed a bond with the applicant on November 2 last at the S.C.A. At the time the licence was issued, Li was given a copy of the Boarding House rules and it was known that this had been displayed in the premises.

According to rule 33 of the Ordinance, the licensee must not absent himself from the premises without the permission of the S.C.A. That permission was frequently asked for and seldom refused.

LICENCEE VANISHES

On March 16 last, a person who had been staying at the boarding house, which was for emigrants to Singapore, gave certain information to the S.C.A. in consequence of which a policeman was sent to the premises. It was then found that the licensee had been absent for four days. A search for him was made for about a week but no trace of him had been found. No permission for his absence had been applied for, and the boarding house had since been closed.

The bond, continued Counsel, was a penal bond and, according to the rules, it was deemed a debt due to the Crown if a breach of the conditions was committed. Defendants were asked to pay the $1,000 but they denied liability.

BASED ON OLD LAWS

The Crown's case, Mr. Williams submitted, was that this sum was recoverable in whole. The submission, he said, was based on the act of Henry VIII, which stipulated that all Crown's debts were recoverable, and not on the statute of William III, which had no reference to the Crown at all.

Mr. Russ admitted all the facts, but said his two points were that the figure was an arbitrary one fixed without reference to any loss, and that the same penalty was enforced for breaches of comparatively great and comparatively small importance. He further submitted that the Crown must rely on the act of William III, for the bond came within its scope. His Lordship said that what was left of this act was merely procedural, and Mr. Russ then asked the Court to interfere as to the reasonableness of the penalty and to exercise its equitable jurisdiction that without loss the Crown could recover no more than nominal damages.

Mr. Williams replied that the amount was named in the bond, and if equity was to be taken into consideration, the Court would be obliged to place some figure on every section of the Ordinance. It had been laid down that the sureties were liable for the amount fixed.

His Lordship gave judgment for plaintiff, with costs, saying that the Court could not interfere to consider the reasonableness or otherwise of the statutory penalty.

BIG DROP IN COLONY HUMIDITY

Temperature at 10 o'clock this morning was two degrees higher than at the same time yesterday, but humidity had declined from 78 per cent. to 50 per cent.

The maximum temperature yesterday was 77, and the minimum last night was 67.

There was only a fraction of an inch of rainfall during the last 24 hours, bringing the total since January 1 to 14.78 inches, as compared with the average of 13.74 inches.

The weather report issued by the Royal Observatory this morning states that a moderate anti-cyclone covers South China, and extends north-eastwards to Japan. The northern depression has moved into the Pacific, and another has developed over Manchuria. The depression of the Visayas has moved southwards. It is situated near, or over Southern Luzon, and appears to be developing into a typhoon.

Local forecast is: North and north-east wind; moderate; fine generally.

STEADY UNDERTONE ON LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE

The London Stock Exchange's new account opened quietly, but the undertone was steady and there was some support, believed to be Belgian, for high priced producing gold mines.

Oils and aviation were in demand. On the Foreign Exchange, the franc continued to meet with a steady demand, but control prevented appreciation. The speculative attack on the belga, arising from the French devaluation last week, continued, and while the spot rate improved against sterling, owing to official support, forward discounts widened sharply. —Reuter Special.

Many Traffic Cases Heard Bus Drivers Involved In Two Mishaps

Resulting from an accident in Queen's Road East on April 23, when a motor bus collided with the traffic lorry at the junction of Murray Road, Lau Yui, driver of China Motor Bus No. 414, appeared before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning, summoned for driving without due care and caution.

Acting Sub-Inspector B. G. Butler said that bus No. 414 was proceeding towards the Star Ferry along Queen's Road East, and turned into Murray Road in front of a west-bound tram-car. About the same time, another motor bus, No. 603, was proceeding east along Queen's Road East, and it had to swerve to the left to avoid No. 414. Bus No. 603 crashed into the lorry, smashing it and causing damage to the extent of $50, which the Bus Company had since paid.

Lau was fined $10. Mr. Pol Eng-poh, private owner, was summoned for driving his vehicle at a dangerous speed in Hennessy Road on April 17. Traffic-Sergeant G. Youe said he drove from Causeway Bay to Arsenal Street at a speed of 40 miles per hour at 10 o'clock at night, and only on one or two occasions did his speed fall below 40 miles per hour.

Chu Kwai-long, 35, a chauffeur, was fined $10 for driving his master's car without a licence, and $50 for driving at a dangerous speed in Lockhart Road.

A summons against Pte. J. Hart, Royal Army Service Corps, was dismissed.

A fine of $10 was imposed on Mr. Tai Wing-kwong, private owner, when he was summoned for overtaking another car on the left side.

For allowing an unlicensed driver to drive, Mr. A. R. H. Esmail, of Village Road, appeared before Mr. Butters this morning. Mrs. Esmail was also summoned for driving a car without a licence. Defendant said he understood Mrs. Esmail had been driving before in the Philippines so he let her take the wheel.

Acting Sub-Inspector Baker said Mrs. Esmail was driving very badly, so he stopped her. A total fine of $25 was imposed.

Lt. A. F. Drew-Wilkinson, of the 2nd Bn. Royal Scots Regiment, failed to answer a summons for having inefficient brakes on his car on April 16. The summons against him was adjourned for a week.

Ke Lam, China Motor Bus driver, appeared on an adjourned summons for driving his bus without due care and caution in Pokfulam Road on March 29. He was involved in an accident when a coolie in a funeral procession was knocked down. Mr. D. B. Evans appeared for the defence and pleaded not guilty. Mr. A. de Silva appeared for the prosecution. Hearing of the case was fixed for 2.30 p.m. on May 25.

Yung Cheong-shut, 23, private chauffeur, was charged with driving a private car for the purpose of hire at Comber Road, Shaukei Wan, admitted the offence, and was fined $50 with the alternative of a month's hard labour.

THREE HURT IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Mr. A. O. C. Mills reported to the police yesterday that he knocked down a Chinese, Wang Kam, 60, in Main Street West, Shaukei Wan, when driving through the area. He applied his brakes in an effort to avoid the man, but the vehicle skidded and hit Wang, who suffered injuries to his face and legs. He was taken to the Queen Mary Hospital.

Mun Kam, 18, was knocked down by bus No. 835 when riding a bicycle in Prince Edward Road. He was taken to the Kowloon Hospital.

Lau Sing, a man, was also admitted to hospital when knocked down by a motor car driven by Ip Fel-sul in Nathan Road.

No American Aid Yet For Victims Of Aggression

Washington, May 9. Efforts to change the U.S. Neutrality Act, which prohibits export of war materials and arms to belligerents, are apparently doomed, at least for the current session of Congress.

Simultaneous efforts have been made to alter the Act in order to enable exports to be sent to the Loyalists in Spain and to China.

President Roosevelt this morning met his Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, and several Congress members on the subject of the Neutrality Act. However, Mr. S. Rayburn, Majority Leader in the House of Representatives, emphasised that his personal view was opposed to reopening the question at present.

Mr. S. McReynolds, Democrat member of the House for Tennessee, flatly stated this afternoon that the Neutrality Act will not be repealed. Mr. Cordell Hull has prepared a detailed report on the operation of the Act, particularly with reference to the Spanish and Sino-Japanese wars. —United Press.

HITLER LEAVING ITALY

Rome, May 9. Herr Adolf Hitler left for Florence this morning on his way back to Germany.

Signor Mussolini, who had seen the Fuehrer off, followed in another special train.

It Duce's train having overtaken that in which the German Chancellor was travelling, Signor Mussolini was able to welcome Herr Hitler when he arrived in Florence.

The splendour of mediaeval Italy lived again in honour of the German dictator. Florence was in its gayest colours, which were enhanced by bright spring sunshine.

Before leaving Italy, Herr Hitler is expected to visit Mussolini's birthplace, where he will lay wreaths on the graves of 11 Duce's ancestors. —Reuter.

LAST APPEARANCE

Florence, May 9. A great shout emanating from ten thousand throats shook the air when Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini came out on the gold-draped balcony of the thirteenth-century palace here for their last appearance before the Italian people.

Their appearance was heralded by trumpeters clad in fifteenth-century costumes, who blew a gay fanfare on silver instruments.

Seven times the two dictators showed themselves during twelve minutes.

The visit of the two dictators brought many visitors to Florence, but it was observed that none were allowed in the narrow streets except soldiers, police and Black Shirts.

The animated murmur of conversation in street cafes ceased with the biting roar of aeroplanes cruising overhead throughout the day.

Herr Hitler, in a statement just before his departure for the frontier, said: "It has been too beautiful. I particularly noticed the truly remarkable friendliness of the Italian people." —Reuter Special.

Claims $4,859 For Short Coal Delivery

Responsibility Argued In Supreme Court

A claim for $4,859.02, being the price of 174 tons of coal allegedly short in delivery, was brought by the Hang Shun and Co. against the Kwong Sang Lung, before the Chief Justice, Sir Charles MacGregor, in the Supreme Court this morning.

Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh-Jones, was for the plaintiffs, while the Hon. Mr. Lep D'Almeida, Jr., instructed by Mr. H. A. de B. Botelho, appeared for defendants.

Mr. Macnamara said his clients entered into a contract with defendants on October 19, 1937 for the purchase of a cargo of coal due to arrive by the s.s. Haidis on November 6. They had paid to defendants $4,470, this being the contract price for 1,603.5 tons of coal, but when the shipment arrived only 1,429.5 tons were delivered. Plaintiffs now claimed the value of the balance.

Continuing, Counsel said the defence was that they had delivered to plaintiffs the whole of the cargo and the ship's side and had got no receipt whatever. Each of the parties alleged that the property and the risk was in the other.

After dealing with the correspondence, Counsel said it was for His Lordship to say whether there had been a new agreement between the parties whereby the ownership of the coal changed hands when the cargo was taken away from the ship's side. He submitted that the defendants were the owners of the coal, that they had full control of the cargo and that they had the right to dispose of it in whatever way they wished.

QUESTION OF RISK

Mr. Cheung Yin-cho, managing partner of plaintiff firm, said he received a letter on November 4 claiming that the cargo was due the next day and that under the contract 80 per cent. of the purchase price had to be paid on delivery. As he had not enough money at the time he went to see Mr. Lo Wing-chi, managing partner of defendant firm, and arranged with him an agreement whereby the cargo was to be stored in defendant's godown at his expense for one week. It was, however, never agreed that storage was to be at his own risk.

The Haidis arrived the next day and he received a letter from defendant claiming that the agreement. His firm took delivery of 100 tons direct from the ship and the remainder was left in defendants' godown.

On December 28 last, his firm obtained an order for 700 tons but they were able to obtain only 680.5 tons from the godown. As to this, the whole sum in respect of the cargo had been paid. Defendants sent a receipt but he refused to sign it as he could not get the 700 tons, and he had never at any time issued a receipt for 1,603.5 tons.

The case is proceeding.

Nazis Behead Dutchman On Secret Charge

Amsterdam, Apr. 22. After lying in a Nazi jail for more than four months under sentence of death, Willy Cammans, a 44-year-old Dutchman, was beheaded to-day.

Nobody, not even his family, was told what his crime was—merely that he had committed "high treason."

Cammans was born in Germany of Dutch parents, and served in the German army as a boy, without losing his Dutch nationality.

After the Armistice Cammans set himself up as a shoemaker at Venlo, on the German border of Holland, and married a Dutch woman.

He often went to Germany on business, and on one of these trips he was arrested and thrown into prison. He did not come out again, and his wife heard not another word from him.

The execution took place in face of official protests by the Dutch Government, and the help of a Dutch lawyer was refused. The trial being secret, no report ever reached Holland, and even the death sentence was made known to Mrs. Cammans in a roundabout manner.

Mussolini Criticises Pope Pius

Sequel To Attack On Swastika

Rome, May 9. A reply to the recent attack on the swastika flag by His Holiness the Pope was made by Signor Benito Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, this morning.

Addressing 500 newly-married couples last week, the Pope deplored the appearance of the Nazi swastika in Rome. "The swastika is certainly not Christ's Cross," he declared.

"We should like to say to the Father of all us Catholics that it is very dangerous to speak of the Cross of Christ, and wave it above as if it were a weapon," said Popolo d'Italia this morning.

"One would then find oneself in the threatening and grinning company of Masonic money-lenders and Bolsheviks, without even having in one's hand the whip with which to drive them from the Temple of God, and to remain alone, desperately alone, praying, praying, praying!"

"You may understand how necessary it is for you to pray, pray, pray for the mercy of the Almighty in His largeness," His Holiness concluded his protest last week against the beflagging of Rome with the swastika. —Reuter.

MR. J. S. DAVIS GIVEN AMBASSADOR'S POST

Washington, May 9. President Roosevelt has nominated Mr. Joseph S. Davis, the well-known economist, as U.S. Ambassador to Hongkong.

The new Ambassador is well-known in England, which he visited in war and post-war years on various missions. He was a member of the Allied Maritime Transport Council in London in 1917-18, and was Assistant Statistician to the American Shipping Mission to London in 1917. He rendered valuable assistance as Technical Assistant to the American members of the Danvers Commission in 1919. —United Press.

BRITISH PROTEST REJECTED

London-Born Woman Confined In Russia Alone In Cell

Moscow, May 9. The Soviet Government has rejected the British Government's Note of Protest at the detention of Rose Cohen, a woman Communist who has been undergoing solitary confinement in a Russian prison since September last year.

The Soviet reply to the British Note emphatically declared that Rose Cohen is a Soviet citizen.

The British Note to the Soviet stated that Britain took a very grave view of the unsatisfactory state of affairs revealed by the Cohen affair, which disregarded the elementary principles of international comity.

Rose Cohen has been for many years foreign editor of the semi-official Moscow Daily News. She was born in London in 1894 but married a Russian. —Reuter.

The distinguished visitor landed at 10 a.m. and after inspecting the guard of honour made an official call on His Excellency.

A large company of the leading officials attended the luncheon given at Government House in honour of the French admiral, and H.E. Dr. Tamagnini Barbosa was among the guests of the French admiral on the Dumont Duville.

The French warship will leave for Hongkong to-morrow morning.

Loyalists Won't Treat With Enemy

Will Fight On To Day Of Victory

London, May 9. Reports of mediation in the Spanish Civil War were emphatically repudiated by Senor Del Vayo, the Spanish Government delegate to the League Council meeting, in a statement issued at Geneva last night.

According to the official Spanish Press Agency, the statement declares that nobody has been authorised to open conversations or negotiations for the conclusion of an armistice in Spain.

No armistice or mediation is possible between the Independent people of Spain and the German and Italian invaders.

"SURRENDER" FRANCO'S ONLY PEACE TERM

Berlin, May 9. Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, former German Ambassador to London, who returned to Berlin recently from Burgos, declared today that unconditional surrender was the only solution of the Spanish Civil War acceptable to the Insurgent leader, General Franco.

This was made clear in an official statement by the Insurgents, in reply to Geneva reports of a Loyalist move for an Armistice and peace. —Reuter.

CHINESE CONTINUE TO HARASS REAR OF INVADING ARMY

Hsuehchow, May 10.

Having failed in their repeated attempts to capture Hsuehchow, the Japanese command is reported to have changed its tactics on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway front.

A new southward drive by heavy reinforcements from Lincheng and Taining, with Kweichow on the Lunghai Railway as objective, has been launched by the Japanese.

Meanwhile, the main Japanese force on the north bank of the Hwai River is advancing vigorously toward Mengcheng, about 80 kilometres north-west of Hwaiyuan, by the Mengcheng-Hwaiyuan highway. After reaching Mengcheng, the Japanese expect to push directly northward to close in on Kweichow.

Temporarily the Japanese troops on both the north and south sectors of Tientsin-Pukow Railway and east of the railway line are taking the defensive.

The Japanese from Taining have been backed at Kiangsu. A Chinese mobile unit is attacking their rear to harass their advance.

Sanguinary fighting has been raging along the Mengcheng-Hwaiyuan highway since May 6. Lungking has been taken by the Japanese. The Chinese are holding their lines about four miles east of Mengcheng.

Denies Chinese Claims

Shanghai, May 9. A Japanese spokesman to-night emphatically denied Chinese reports of the re-occupation of Nantunghow. Japanese planes, he said, continued heavy air raids on the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways and South China area. —United Press.

Japanese Weakened

Hankow, May 9. Referring to Chinese guerrilla activities in the vicinity of Peiping, General Iba Pei-ken disclosed today that Chinese forces had attacked Laisui, Kaopetien and Luliho, along the Pinghan Railway, on April 29, Lukouchiao, Mentoku and Tungchow on May 4 and 5, and Chinglungchiao on May 7.

At Chochow, 1,000 Manchukuo troops had deserted to the Chinese forces, and the total Japanese forces in the Peiping and Tientsin areas at present was only three regiments.

"Insufficiency of troops is beginning to tell on the Japanese everywhere, and they now realise that they must give up huge tracts of previously conquered territory if they want to concentrate large forces anywhere such as on the Tientsin-Pukow front." —United Press.

Evacuating Shansi

Hankow, May 10. The Japanese evacuation of South Shansi and the massing of almost the entire Japanese forces in China for the battle for Hsuehchow represented the highlights of the military situation, declared a Chinese army spokesman to-day, reviewing developments during the past week.

Comparing the present Japanese invasion to the Mongol invasion of the Thirteenth Century, the spokesman stressed the impossibility of any foreign race conquering China, since the Mongol garrisons scattered throughout China later were either wiped out or compelled to surrender.

Reviewing the situation in south Shantung, the spokesman said the main body of Chinese forces in the Tangcheng sector had circled around Tangcheng, and were at present approaching Linyi. A Chinese column operating west of Tangcheng had prevented the Japanese there from forming a junction with the Japanese forces north of Pihien.

Japanese Halted

The main battle on the south Shantung front, the spokesman stated, had taken place east of Talerchwang. The Chinese counter-attacked on May 3, advancing seven miles, while the Chinese wings were closing in with a gap of only two kilometres separating them. The Chinese left flank, south-west of Yihai, had fallen back slightly but the Japanese advance had been altered and there was no change in the situation at Hanchwang, where the Chinese and Japanese were opposing each other across the Grand Canal.

Continuing, the spokesman said the Japanese were massing 20,000 men in west Shantung for a drive towards Kweichow, west of Hsuehchow.

On the Peiping-Hankow railway front the Japanese formed only one division which was scattered at Shihsiang, Pongli, Fengchiu and Taining. The main body of the Japanese in Shansi were holding the Tung-

JAPAN SEES SIGNIFICANCE IN TREATY

Tokyo, May 9. Referring to reports of possible anti-Japanese friction as a result of the Agreement between Britain and Italy, Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, made the following statement to the press to-night: "There have been various reports purporting to give the impression that the Anglo-Italian accord will take its tenets from the Japanese Italo-German anti-Comintern agreement."

"Nothing can be further from the truth. Close co-operation between Japan, Italy and Germany is provided for in the anti-Comintern Pact, which cannot under any circumstances be affected by any agreement between Great Britain, Italy and Germany."

"Rather, the co-operation of Great Britain with Italy and Germany can be deemed her approach to the anti-Comintern alignment, while the Anglo-French alignment seems primarily aimed at securing the peace of Europe." —United Press.

How to know GOOD WHISKY when you taste it

—by Johnnie Walker

Next time you order a whisky, sip a little before you add the soda. Of course you must allow for it tasting stronger, but because you are tasting it by itself your palate can more easily tell the difference between a really good whisky and one that is not quite so good. You will notice a certain roughness in poor whiskies. But in a really good whisky like Johnnie Walker you will find a "roundness" that mellows and tones down the fine spirit. Observe, too, in Johnnie Walker that faint peatiness of taste which is one of the greatest charms of Highland whisky — one of the reasons why you should always ask for Johnnie Walker by name.

LEAGUE MUST BE PREPARED FOR WAR

Churchill Urges "Covenant Army" Be Mobilised

London, May 9.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in a speech at Manchester to-night, outlined proposals for making the League of Nations an all-powerful weapon against aggression and aggressors.

He said the plan envisaged would ward off the devastation and horror of war. It lay in a single sentence: "Arm and stand by the Covenant of the League of Nations."

Mr. Churchill suggested that Great Britain and France should say to the smaller, menacing States: "We are not going to help you if you are not going to help yourselves. Are you prepared to take special service in the defence of the Covenant?"

"If we could rally ten well-armed States who were bound to resist aggression we would be so strong that all danger would be warded off," declared Mr. Churchill.

"The Danubian and Balkan States could be mopped up one by one, but together they would display an enormous strength."

Mr. Churchill also mentioned Soviet Russia, Poland and the Baltic and Scandinavian countries as possible supporters of such a plan.

"I do not mean to say we should encircle Germany with a ring of hostile Powers. We ask no security for ourselves that we are not prepared to extend to Germany."

"Let her join the club and share its privileges and safeguards."

"The alternative to adoption of the course suggested is to give Germany her colonies, with a free hand to spread the Nazi system in central Europe."

"After an interval we would be drawn into war as an antagonist of an overwhelmingly powerful combination of Nazi states. We would find ourselves without a friend."—Reuter.

Ship's Fireman Fined $250 On Opium Charge

Cheong Foo-yau, a fireman on board the Jardine steamer Tak Song, was fined $250 or three months' imprisonment when he pleaded guilty before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy this morning to the possession of 25 taels of raw opium.

Senior Revenue Officer Grimmit, prosecuting, said the opium was found in defendant's bunk, and he had admitted buying it in Swatow for $80. When being taken to the Chief Engineer by Revenue Officer Dunlop he had bolted from the ship, but was chased and arrested in Third Street.

DIVAN KEEPERS IN COURT

Tang Kwai, 48, and Chan Kwong, 25, were charged before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy this morning with unlawful possession of prepared opium, and with keeping opium divans.

The men were arrested as a result of police raids.

Tang was fined $220 or seven weeks' hard labour on the first charge and $100 or two months' hard labour on the second.

Chan was fined $40 or one month's hard labour on the first count and $100 or two months on the second.

BRITISH RAILWAY INTERESTS IN CHINA IN DANGER

Japanese Allegedly Sell Fares on Mortgaged Nanking-Shanghai Line

London, May 9.

Mr. A. C. Moreing, Conservative Member for Preston, asked in the House of Commons to-night whether the Government was aware of the fact that Japanese authorities were refusing to allow British railway officials to inspect the Shanghai-Nanking line on behalf of British mortgagees of railway revenues, and were themselves selling passenger tickets on the line.

The questioner asked what steps were being taken to stop this serious breach of the Loan Agreement.

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied that he was aware of the refusal to allow inspection of the line. With regard to the sale of railway tickets, he understood that permits to travel on the line were issued by the Japanese military authorities, and that permit-holders had to pay their fares to the Japanese.

The British Ambassador to China, Sir Archibald Kerr Clark Kerr, has urged the Japanese authorities to ensure the safeguarding of British interests in the line. Sir Robert Craigie, the Ambassador to Tokyo, has also taken up the matter, and has asked the Japanese Government to afford an early opportunity to representatives of British mortgagees to inspect and survey the line, and to take necessary measures to safeguard the interests of British bondholders.

Mr. A. V. Alexander, Member for the Hillsborough Division of Sheffield, asked if this was one of the "vested interests" in which Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, had referred. Could Britain, he asked, rely that there would be no selling of the Chinese people for vested interests?

In reply, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said that Mr. Alexander could rest assured that the British Government would consider all British interests concerned in the dispute.—Reuter.

His genius for utilising all he heard was astonishing.

No One Could Bamboozle Him

Every day his secretaries fed the blind chief with thousands of facts. They emerged as articles, directions for the running of the business, cables to editors.

He developed a more acute sense of judgment over the men he dealt with than when he had his sight.

NO one could bamboozle him. He would pull a letter out of his pocket and ask his companion to read it. "One never knew what was behind these requests. He was often trying to find out whether a previous person who had read the letter to him was keeping something back or not."

He would detect the least variation or uneasiness in your voice,

London, May 9.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, Labour Member for the Kingswinford division of Staffordshire, asked in the House of Commons to-night what steps were being taken to prevent repetitions of recent incidents in Shanghai between Japanese troops and officers and men of the British Services.

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied that incidents of the nature mentioned were always liable to occur in the conditions ruling in the Shanghai area.

The British Government was doing its utmost by negotiation and remonstrance to avoid a recurrence of such incidents.—Reuter.

Peking, May 10.

The Provisional Government has announced that a new military academy located at Tungchow, will be formally opened at 9 o'clock this morning in the presence of Chinese and Japanese officials.

JAPAN'S LOSSES SET AT 350,000

More Than Million Men Landed In China So Far

Hankow, May 9.

Since the beginning of the war in July last year, the Japanese have landed 1,100,000 troops in China.

They have suffered 350,000 casualties.

These estimates are made to-day by a Chinese military spokesman, who expressed the belief that the remaining Japanese forces in China were insufficient to hold the long lines in Shantung.

"We are doing our utmost to lengthen this line, for the longer it becomes, the more scattered and disorganised will be the Japanese forces trying to maintain it."

The spokesman expressed the opinion that the Tientsin-Pukow Railway would continue to be the main front for some time.

"Should the Japanese decide, however, to concentrate their main push in, let us say, Shansi, then Shansi will become a second Shantung, and the Tientsin-Pukow area will become a second Shansi, where the Japanese troops will be forced to give back all but a few isolated points."

"They have had to do this already in Shansi, because the long battle-front on the Tientsin-Pukow railway in Shantung has forced them to withdraw all available forces from other provinces."—United Press.

"CONSOLIDATE YOUR GAINS"

The latest developments in the European sphere leaves the mind groping for the real intentions of the powers, dismayed by the inconsistencies of diplomacy and altogether uncertain of the future trend. But taking the situation as a whole there are one or two hopeful aspects; indications of a changing mental attitude which may encourage the exponents of peaceful policy. Since the German occupation of Austria and the delicate balance which resulted, there has been a general retreat from violence and an apparently genuine attempt on the part of one "belligerent" nation to reach a compromise with a suspected rival. Italy has signed an agreement with Great Britain, and for the first time in years these two nations are on terms which do not cause misgivings. But the agreement was only won at the cost of a retreat from the moral stand taken by Great Britain, and to many is unsatisfactory for that reason. Yesterday despatches from Europe told of Lord Halifax having failed to win unanimous recognition at Geneva for Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia. When it is remembered that there were many who would have had Britain go to war to prevent the Italian occupation of this territory, the attitude of the Government is a little disconcerting. Had the intervening developments not been known to an observer he must have been dumfounded by this actually astonishing change of policy. And, it must be said, he probably would have been not a little shocked had he been an Englishman. However, the word of the Chamberlain administration must be taken that the present attitude is for the best. And indeed, if by recognising the presence of a stone wall a nation can avoid butting its head against it, the course is probably wise.

In the later developments in Europe the immediate effect of this changed British attitude is seen. Signor Mussolini is trying to discourage Herr Hitler from any course which will involve the use of force in correcting the Czecho-Slovakian minority trouble; or so despatches indicate. Signor Mussolini is apparently offering certain inducements, such as diplomatic support for German aims, if Germany steers away from war in Eastern Europe.

THE TORTURED MILLIONAIRE

By JOHN
HAMPDEN

I HAVE just finished reading the life story of a millionaire with whom no beggar in the gutter would want to change places.

The name of the millionaire was Joseph Pulitzer. His strange life of suffering is told in a fine book, "An Adventure With a Genius," by Alleyne Ireland, just published by Lovat Dickson (7s. 6d.).

Pulitzer was a man who achieved world fame as a newspaper publisher.

Afflicted
In His Prime

He was the real founder of modern journalism. His newspapers, the St. Louis Post Dispatch and the New York World, cried abroad new ideas and new principles which outlasted the dull columns of their contemporaries.

Instead of flattering the politicians they criticised them. They exposed corruption, they fought furious campaigns for public reforms.

BUT though Pulitzer became a millionaire and a world figure through his papers, fate took away with one hand what she gave with the other.

In the first place, Pulitzer developed a terrible nervous malady which made the slightest sound a torture to him.

In the second place, he became blind.

These afflictions struck him in the prime of life.

One day he found he could hardly read the proofs put before

Such an attitude is not in keeping with what British people have been led to expect from Italy, but if Britain can change her tune, so can the fiddlers of Rome. And if it is less martial, so much the better. So it is hardly fair to charge the diplomats of these two countries with inconsistencies when, had they stubbornly stuck to their discords, someone probably would have been driven to violent measures.

Granted that there has been this much progress towards appeasement, the time has not yet come when British people can sit back with folded hands and "let matters take their course". There are still large and grave problems to be faced and decided. The Czecho-Slovakian quarrel is only one; the Spanish affair is another; the Polish-Lithuanian dispute and the whole of the Eastern European scene require careful watching. Britain, and other nations who seek to keep the peace for themselves and for others, must be alert to lend what aid they can to statesmen everywhere who are trying to extricate their affairs out of the tangle which wars, treaties and depressions have created. The League of Nations, even its warmest adherents admit, is virtually helpless now. It is for individual Governments to act; and they must act without confusing issues and, if possible, without injuring anyone's feelings. If past experience causes a little apprehensiveness on the part of lesser powers—and they have some cause for alarm—it can only be hoped that their just claims will be respected. For if Europe has progressed towards some sort of permanent understanding it would be a criminal thing to relax the efforts which have brought even these trivial tangible results.

JOSEPH PULITZER

him. He thought it was indigestion.

An oculist told him that he had burst a blood vessel in one eye.

It developed into the separation of the retina of both eyes.

Pulitzer retired from the world, a blind man with wrecked nerves. He lived in strange sound proof houses in New York, London, Mentone and in his yacht.

Many people forgot he was alive.

His nervous affliction coloured his whole life.

PICTURE him as he drifts about the seas at a snail's pace in his yacht, Liberty, suffering.

Every noise pierces his inmost being as if with red-hot irons. Meal times are a torture to him.

The pleasant tinkle of a spoon against a saucer makes him wince like a dog threatened with a whip.

The gurgle of water poured into a glass, the striking of a match, send a pang right through his body.

Aroused By Footstep

Every one in the yacht must wear rubber-soled shoes, because the scraping of leather sets his teeth on edge. The part of the deck under which he sleeps is roped off because a solitary footfall will ruin his night.

Each door which gives access to the rooms above his cabin has a little brass plate. On the plate is cut a legend: "This door must not be opened when Mr. Pulitzer is asleep."

Once almonds suddenly disappear from the dessert at dinner. The chief steward hesitatingly confesses to an inquirer that Mr. Pulitzer cannot endure the sound of an almond being snapped in half.

HE had the greatest difficulty in sleeping.

A curious ceremony was performed each day after lunch. Mr. Pulitzer would put on his pyjamas or perhaps merely take off his coat and shoes and lie down.

A secretary, one of the obedient throng, would be summoned to read him some play or book.

At a certain point Pulitzer would say, "Softly." Then after a little, "Quite softly." This was a sign that Pulitzer was going off into a doze.

Lulled To Sleep
By A Mumble

The secretary would then make the words more and more indistinct until he sank into a kind of mumble. This mumble was very difficult to acquire, and new secretaries had agonies in learning it.

The mumbler would keep Mr. Pulitzer in a state of dozing. The secretary could read a novel or whatever he liked so long as he kept up this noise with his lips—and he might have to do it for hours on end.

The slightest change in the pitch of voice, a sneeze or a cough, would awaken Mr. Pulitzer with a start, and an unpleasant quarter of an hour would follow.

EVERY door in his houses in London, New York and Mentone shut automatically and silently and was draped with heavy curtains to prevent the slightest noise from filtering through.

His bedroom in New York was unique.

Although his bedroom appeared to form part of the house it did not in fact do so. It stood upon its own foundation and was connected with the main structure by some ingenious device which isolated it from all vibrations originating there.

It was of the most solid construction and had but one window, a very large affair consisting of three casements set one inside the other, and provided with heavy plate glass.

This triple window was never opened when Mr. Pulitzer was in the room, the ventilation being secured by means of fans situated in a long masonry shaft whose interior opening was in the chimney and whose exterior opening was far enough away to forbid the passage of any sound in the streets.

Noise-Proof Bedroom

At intervals inside this shaft were placed frames with silk threads drawn across them for the purpose of absorbing any faint vibrations which might find their way in.

In this bedroom, with its triple window and its heavy double door closed, Pulitzer enjoyed as near approach to perfect quietness as it was possible to obtain in New York.

CHOOSING an hotel in which he could bear to stay was a heavy task.

A secretary would inspect half a dozen before settling on one. He would have to spend two or three hours in each finding out certain things, for experience had proved that hotel managers' assurances were not to be trusted.

He must find out not only whether there were any noisy guests, whether the windows rattled, whether the floor creaked. Even the route from the station had to be carefully considered. A trial run was made in a car. If the route followed a tramline, if it went by a noisy spot like a children's playground, if it passed over a rough piece of road, the whole route had to be revised.

THE extraordinary thing is that, with his blindness, with his wretched health, with his almost maniacal nervous affection, Mr. Pulitzer was one of the greatest workers the world has ever seen.

He kept five or six secretaries on the run the whole time. They were necessary to keep him informed of the progress of his papers and of every world event. But they were also necessary because Mr. Pulitzer could not bear to be left to himself for a minute. Some one must be talking to him all the time.

Endless Meal
Of Facts

All the seen world was cut off from Pulitzer. His secretaries must be his eyes, must tell him of everything, must re-create the whole world for him.

He took each of them in turn to talk to him. If they stopped for even a minute his nerves were all a-jangle.

And not light talk either. Pulitzer demanded an endless meal of fine chopped facts. Facts about the news, the arts, the world, politics, plays, and others—anything so long as they talked.

The secretaries would work from early in the morning until late at night to prepare for their talks with their chief.

Some would be reading through the mountains of Press cuttings which were sent after him from America. Some would be picking "human items" out of the newspapers to provide him with topics of conversation.

Some marked passages in magazines to read out to him. Some would even be reading novels to relate the plot to him.

EACH secretary would go tremblingly on duty to the task of informing or amusing Mr. Pulitzer. He would work up the meal they offered him. They feverishly looked in their pockets to see if they could not find another cutting to read to Mr. Pulitzer. Silence. Then—

"No, no. Don't let us stop talking or reading," Pulitzer would cry. "I must have something to occupy my mind all the time no matter how exhausted I am."

A Patient
Listener

Then the secretary would have to bring his story to a hasty conclusion and retire in disgrace, leaving another to take on the Herculean task of amusing Mr. Pulitzer.

If he was interested—his interest was endless.

He would patiently listen while some one told him the whole plot of a play of Shakespeare. When they had finished he would ask them the plot of another play, and so on, far into the night.

When they had exhausted their repertoire, he would ask them if they had read Shakespeare's sonnets.

SOMETIMES Mr. Pulitzer would want to laugh. Then they would get a whole year's file of comic papers, read them through in the small hours of the morning and serve up the dish to Mr. Pulitzer next day.

One secretary had a box containing hundreds of funny stories in his cabin. He would take out a handful and slip them in his pocket whenever he was summoned to attend the great man.

But they had to be careful to tell Mr. Pulitzer nothing that was too funny. In his disordered state of nerves loud laughter caused him acute pain.

Japan Plans To Extend Armed Operations

"IMPORTANT TO WORLD AT LARGE"

Prince Konoye Makes Startling Prediction

Kyoto, May 10.

Declaring that the new war situation in China was "objectively more important than the occupation of Nanking," Premier Prince Ayamaro Konoye yesterday predicted major military developments within the course of the current month.

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, the Japanese Prime Minister told newspapermen on his arrival here from Tokyo to attend memorial services for Emperor Komei, great grand-father of the present monarch, who ruled from 1848 to 1867, may "sue for peace" as a sequel to Japan's new military action.

The apparent deadlock in the Sino-Japanese hostilities, Prince Konoye asserted, had been reported in an "exaggerated" manner abroad. As a result, he continued, the new Japanese operations would have "important significance" in the world at large.

Should the regime under Gen. Chiang Kai-shek sue for peace, the Prime Minister said, Japan would not be able to accept any proposals because of her declaration of January 16 not to deal with the Hankow government leader.

Under such circumstances, the Prime Minister believed there would be no alternative left for the Kuomintang regime than to be merged into the new Chinese government, with which Japan has announced her intentions to co-operate under the anti-Comintern banner.

The Prime Minister further fore-shadowed the fusion of the "Nanking and Peiping regimes" early next month as a sequel to the predicted startling military developments.

The Reformed and Provincial Governments have agreed to merge when through traffic is restored on the Tientsin-Pukow and Lunghai railways.—Domei.

Predicts Change In War Situation

Kyoto, May 9.

Prince Konoye, the Japanese Premier, in a press statement to-day emphasized that the military situation in China was developing exactly as planned, and was now assuming an importance probably even greater than that attached to the occupation of Nanking.

Despite "great exaggerations" of the situation abroad, the Japanese Premier predicted a considerable change in the situation before the end of the month.

Japan was proceeding slowly with its policies towards the new Chinese regime in Nanking and Peiping. There may be some friction in the Cabinet and with Councilors, but everything would eventually be smoothed over.

"Japan is determined to co-operate with the new China," he declared.—United Press.

No Territorial Ambitions

Tokyo, May 10.

Mr. Koki Hirota, Japan's Foreign Minister, to-day said that the fact that occupied areas in China showed permitted self-government showed that Japan was without territorial ambitions.

"The important thing is that the Chinese and the Japanese must get together peacefully, economically and socially."

Mr. Hirota expressed the belief that Soviet Russia would soon cease rendering assistance to China, because they would find such assistance fruitless.

Foreshadowing an extension of Japanese activities in China, Mr. Hirota told the foreign press that the new Chinese Government must control more territory than at present before Japan would grant recognition.

He denied that Great Britain had offered to mediate in the Sino-Japan-

Baby's Eyes Must Be Removed

Chicago, May 9.

A medical problem which all America has been discussing was decided to-day by a jury of twelve doctors, scientists and clergymen, who agreed on the desirability of an immediate operation on a five-weeks-old baby girl, Helaine Colan.

The baby girl has a growth in the head which is slowly moving towards her brain. Cure can be effected only by removing the eyes, thus presenting a problem whether death would not be preferable to lifelong blindness.

The baby is stricken with retinal biloma—a cancerous tumour which creeps along the optic nerve towards the brain—the left eye, with the right eye probably impaired in a similar manner. Without an operation, the child would have lived for only five months at the most. An operation would necessitate severance of the optic nerve, with resulting blindness. The distraught parents, a young Chicago dentist named Herman Colan and his wife, threw the onus of making a decision on the jury, after whose decision the baby's left eye was to-day removed.

A Committee of eight X-Ray specialists will now examine the baby to determine the course of treatment for the right eye which, if too far affected, will also have to be removed if the baby's life is to be saved.—Reuter.

Labour May Gain Another Commons Seat

Colonial Secretary Goes To House Of Lords

London, May 9.

The death of Lord Harlech on Sunday will necessitate a by-election in the Stafford Division of Stafford, which is held by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. William Ormsby-Gore, who now becomes fourth Lord Harlech, and is automatically elevated to the House of Lords.

The new Lord Harlech has been in politics since 1910, and was Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Colonies in 1922-23, and from 1924 to 1929. He was appointed Postmaster General when the first National Government was formed in August, 1931, and became First Commissioner of Works, with a seat in the Cabinet in November the same year. He became Secretary of State for the Colonies in the Baldwin Government.

The Stafford by-election may result in the loss of yet another seat to the National Government.

Four have already been lost this year, and if the swing towards Labour is sufficient, Stafford may become another Labour gain. In the 1925 elections, Mr. Ormsby-Gore's majority in a 28,000 poll was only 3,001.

The Stafford electorate Labour holds three, and the National Government four of the seven divisions.—United Press.

Chungking Fire Casualties Still Mounting

30,000 PEOPLE HOMELESS IN BIG CONFLAGRATION

Chungking, May 10.

Casualties in Sunday's great fire, which devastated one of the poorest quarters of the city, now exceeds 100 dead and injured.

Seven thousand homes have been destroyed by the flames, and 30,000 people are homeless.

The fire began at 2.30 a.m. and, aided by a night breeze, the flames raced through the district from building to building, driving the frantic inhabitants before them in an attempt to seek safety within the city walls.

Linchmen, which has a very narrow gate, was the scene of desperate struggles as the terror-stricken crowds jostled and pushed to escape the terrifying heat and flames.

A number of people, especially children, were trampled to death in the bitter struggle to get through the gate.

Damage is estimated at $2,000,000. Fifteen bodies have so far been recovered. Seventy people are in hospital.—Reuter Special.

ETHIOPIA'S DELEGATES ACCEPTED AT GENEVA

Geneva, May 9.

After a secret session lasting three hours, the League Council decided that the Ethiopian delegation would be allowed to be present at the table of the Council when the Ethiopian question was being discussed, on condition that the presence of the delegation would be without prejudice to the question of principle, and subject to the validity of their credentials.

A statement at 11.30 a.m. by Lord Halifax, the British Foreign Minister who is leading the Empire delegation, will be followed by a long speech by Dr. Wellington Koo of China on the general situation in the Far East.

The League Council has decided that the Chinese appeal will be heard in public to-morrow.

It was also decided that there should be no resolution or recommendation on the subject of Abyssinia, but only declarations by individual members of the League Council, acting within their sovereign rights.

This procedure was adopted when the question of Italian aggression came before the Council.—Reuter.

ETHIOPIANS PRESENT

Geneva, May 9.

A private meeting of the League Council, which lasted half-an-hour, adopted the agenda for the session.

The two Ethiopian delegates were unexpectedly present as observers, but did not attend the secret meeting of the Council which followed.

Lord Halifax will make a statement at to-morrow's initial public meeting regarding the Anglo-Italian Agreement, after which the question of the Spanish appeal will come before the Council.—Reuter.

ETHIOPIA NOT SUBDUED

London, May 9.

Emperor Haile Selassie, who is fighting to obtain continued League recognition of his claim to the Ethiopian throne, issued a statement in London to-night.

Revolts and resistance, he declared, have prevented Italy from establishing military control in at least three-fourths of the total area of Ethiopia. Italian domination was confined to areas of a 30-mile radius around villages and towns.—United Press.

Roosevelt's Re-Armament Programme

Congressional Support For Big Navy Plan

Washington, May 9.

The joint conference between the Senate and House of Representatives has agreed to the Naval Expansion Bill provisions, and has drastically modified Senator Vandenberg's amendment, limiting battleship tonnage to 35,000 unless President Roosevelt obtains specific evidence that other nations are planning to build larger ships.

The bill committee has re-instated in the Bill the House of Representatives' provision authorising the construction of three 35,000-ton battleships if the President finds such in the interests of National defence.

Meanwhile, Admiral Leahy told the Naval Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives that a $28,751,000 naval building programme is necessary to provide adequate shore stations for the present navy, without regard to any expansion at a future date.—United Press.

Ex-Serviceman Goes To House Of Detention

Appearing before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistrate's court this morning, Frank Wain, 22, pleaded guilty to a charge of being vagrant in the Colony. He was committed to the House of Detention.

Lance-Sergeant Loughlin said that the defendant had purchased his discharge from the Service, thinking he could get another position, but had not been able to do so.

An Indian, Atma Singh, 30, charged with being in Hongkong without a valid passport, said he would refuse to go when told an expulsion order would be made against him, and was told by Mr. Edwards that, if he spoke like that in Court he would be committed to prison.

At the Marine Court to-day two old junk mistresses, both over 70 years of age, were fined $2 each for having used grappling irons for the purpose of lifting articles from the sea-bed off Kellott Island, Victoria Harbour.

They were Wong Lin, 70, and Kwok Yan, 74. Also charged and similarly fined was Leung Fo, 35, junk mistress. All defendants pleaded guilty.

"It's no good. They know perfectly well they are not allowed to do it," commented the Marine Magistrate, Commander G. F. Hole.

Cheung Kam Saul, junk-mistress, was fined $10, with the alternative of ten days in goal, on a charge of having made fast her boat to the Kong Ning wharf under way in the Southern Fairway on May 9 without permission of the master.

Mrs. Branson Leaving Post

Will Be Missed By Charity Workers

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Society for the Protection of Children was held this morning at the Helena May Institute, with Mrs. C. A. Middleton-Smith in the Chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, approved and signed. The Chairman said that Mrs. V. C. Branson, the Honorary Treasurer, was retiring. Her untiring co-operation had assisted in the smooth working of the Society. (Applause). There being no volunteers to fill the vacancy, the matter was left for the next meeting.

During the minutes was the matter of the telephone. A letter had been written to the Secretary of the Hongkong Telephone Company, and his reply had been received. He regretted that the finances of the Society for the Protection of Children made it impossible for his Company to install telephones at all the Centres. The Boys and Girls' Club had, he said, offered to install one for the use of the Society, which would make contact with the Inspectors of the Society simpler and quicker. After some discussion it was decided to accept this offer.

It was also decided to write to the Salvation Army Home and ask if it would be possible for someone to attend Police Courts and report to the Society thereon.

Miss Helen Yu tendered her resignation from the Committee, as she found that she no longer had the leisure to give the Society her full co-operation. Her resignation was accepted with regret.

The Hon. Treasurer reported that a profit of $2,302 was made on the Ball held last month. An amount of $105 had also been donated by "Dolly Varden" from the proceeds of the Spring Fashion Show.

Mrs. W. Park consented to the Honorary Secretary to the Creche at West Point.

It was suggested that knitted coats be made by the Committee during the summer so that they would be ready for the poor children when the cold weather set in. Wool for this purpose will be purchased and available at the next meeting.

The meeting adjourned until June 14 at 10 a.m. at the Helena May Institute.

WORKERS SATISFIED

The two-month-old strike at the Chung Hwa Book Company plant was satisfactorily concluded to-day when 1,344 men went back to work. They included 705 re-recruiters who had held out for more money when their colleagues had already returned to work after a brief walk-out.

No further trouble is expected as the men now seem perfectly satisfied with conditions.

Soldier Wins Discharge

Alibi Upsets Police Allegations

Accused of burglary at the Neptune Bar, Gloucester Road, on the evening of May 6, Pte. Hugh Kilpatrick, of the Royal Scots Regiment, was found not guilty by Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning, and discharged.

Kilpatrick was alleged by the police to have gone into the Neptune Bar about 11 p.m. on May 6 and to have later passed bottles of liquor to other soldiers who were waiting in the back yard of the bar.

Yesterday, witnesses gave evidence for the defence. Liu Kwai-chun, a cabaret girl employed at the Queen's Dance Hall, said she saw Kilpatrick in the Hall about 9 p.m. and he danced with her for about half an hour after midnight. She could not say whether he stayed in the dance hall from 9 p.m. to after midnight, without leaving.

Wong Kon-chau, manager of the dance hall, said he also saw Kilpatrick at the Hall about 9 p.m. and he was still there when the hall closed at 1 a.m. Defendant was not in uniform, and witness did not see any bottles of drink about. Witness could not say whether defendant left the dance hall or not in that time.

Pte. J. Ellison, Royal Scots, said he met Kilpatrick at the dance hall about 10 p.m. and they remained together until 1 a.m.

Replying to Detective Sub-Inspector W. N. Dinkin, who, prosecuted, witness said there was another soldier with them. During their stay in the dance hall, they ordered coffee.

STAGE ALL SET FOR DRAMATIC TENNIS FINAL

Who Will Win? The Tsuis Or The Rumjahn Cousins?

EVER since that memorable match in 1930 when the Tsui brothers defeated the Rumjahn cousins in the third round of the Colony tennis doubles championship, many have wondered what the result of a return encounter would be. In the two years which have elapsed since that day, the two pairs have never met in the open championship; the Rumjahns entered again as usual last year but Tsui Wai-pui was away in Europe representing China in the Davis Cup competition. It is inevitable, though, that so long as the Rumjahns and the Tsuis remain in the forefront of local tennis they are bound to clash sooner or later. That moment has now arrived: the two pairs meet this afternoon on the sandcourt of the Hongkong Cricket Club to contest the final of the 1938 doubles championship. It is fitting also that such a momentous encounter should be in the final, for the two pairs are head and shoulders above any other combination in the Colony.

A Blood Match

MORE than ordinary interest is attached to the counter because it is a "blood" match. On one side will be the cousins, whose supremacy in the doubles game during the last 13 years has only once been successfully challenged, determined to prove that their defeat by the Chinese was only a temporary lapse, and on the other will the brothers out to show that their 1936 success was no flash in the pan. The stage is set for a dramatic struggle. If events turn out as one is entitled to expect, then a first-class game is counterbalanced by the great improvement shown by the young Tsui, whose marathon struggle against "H.D." has stamped him as a very promising player indeed. Taking everything into consideration, the two pairs seem very well-matched. The Chinese have that over a power of striking in their favour; against these, the Rumjahns have experience and a ripe understanding. In a match in which two such pairs are in opposition, it would take a bold man to prophesy the result. Many people have expressed the view that the Chinese should win, contending that Tsui Wai-pui will prove himself the deciding factor. I am inclined to agree that the Tsuis will win, but both of them produce their best form but the Rumjahns demonstrated against Willie Hung and E.C. Fincher recently that there is still plenty of life in the old dogs yet, and any perceptible weakening on the part of the Chinese may give them the opportunity for which they have been looking.

A Quick Slide

CHAMPIONS of the First Division last season; now to be relegated to the Second Division. Such is the unhappy experience of Manchester City in the English Football League—an experience almost unparalleled in the history of the competition. Seldom before, if ever, has a club made such a rapid descent. Accompanying the City down the Second Division are West Bromwich Albion, who regained their senior status in 1931 after being relegated in 1927. It is when we see First Division teams suffering from ignominies of the description now being experienced by Manchester City that we feel like doffing our hats to the Arsenal who, despite injuries and all other ills which footballers are heirs to, always seem to be able to remain in the forefront as the "glamour team" of English football. Once again the Gunners have carried off the championship; they "pipped" the Wolverhampton Wanderers at the post by beating Bolton Wanderers at Highbury on Saturday by five goals to nil. The two points which they gained from this victory gave them an advantage of the point over the Wolves, who unfortunately had to visit Sunderland, where away teams seldom come off best. Not unexpectedly, the Wolves suffered the same fate as many other teams this season, and lost by the only goal of the match. One cannot help sympathizing with the Wolves in thus being thwarted at the finish. Had they won, they would have been deserving champions. It only for the magnificent displays which they have put up during the season. Capable of rising to great heights, this team of youngsters has supplied some of the best football in the campaign just concluded. Their main fault was that they could also sink pretty low, and they lost several games which they should normally have won. On the other hand, the Arsenal have been struggling along often without their centre-forward, Ted Drake, and almost throughout the season without Roberts, their Tennis To Start At 4.15 p.m.

It was officially announced this morning by Mr. P. E. Bassett, Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong Cricket Club, that the doubles tennis final this afternoon will start at 4.15 p.m. His Excellency the Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote, has signified his intention of being present at the match.

BRITAIN LEADS IN DAVIS CUP

Wins Doubles In Straight Sets

Harrogate, May 9. Great Britain leads Rumania by two matches to one in their Davis Cup first round tie following a victory in the doubles.

F. H. D. Wilde and D. W. Butler were lucky to beat Carliouls and Schmidt in straight sets, the scores being 6-0, 7-5, 6-2.—Reuter.

A Trans-Ocean message states that the Rumanian players put up a gallant fight in the first two sets but their resistance noticeably weakened in the third.

FRANCE THROUGH

The Hague, May 9. France beat Holland by 3-2 and thus earns the right to meet Monaco in the second round of the competition.

On the last day Petra defeated Van Sowaert 6-3, 6-2 whilst Desprez beat Hughes by 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.—Trans-Ocean.

GERMAN TEAM

Berlin, May 9. The names of the four German tennis players nominated by the German Lawn Tennis Association as Reichs representatives in the Davis Cup tie with Norway were announced here to-day. The four members of the German team will be Horner, Henkel, Goepfert, Redl and von Metaxa.

The two last named players, who are both Austrians, will represent Germany for the first time in the forthcoming tie which will be played either in Berlin or in Hamburg on May 20 and the two following days.

The definite line up of the German team for the matches will be announced in a few days.—Trans-Ocean.

"stopper" centre-half, whose place was so capably filled by Bernard Joy, the amateur. Yet they have always maintained a certain standard.

Villa's Return

MANY will be pleased to see the return of Aston Villa to the First Division. The Villa's taste of Second Division soccer has lasted only two seasons. Their reinstatement was obviously only a matter of time; a team with such a reputation and with such great resources at its back and call cannot be expected to be kept out of senior football for long. Going up with the Villa are Manchester United, who were relegated together with Sheffield Wednesday last year. So, what- ever consolation Manchester football enthusiasts may derive lies in the fact that one Manchester team at least remains in the premier division.

One Will Retire

SO confident are professional tennis circles that Donald Budge will turn professional next season that a private agreement has reportedly been reached between Fred Perry and Ellsworth Vines to take care of the contingency. Perry and Vines are said to have decided that the loser of this season's tennis tour will retire from the tennis field, leaving the winner free to face Budge in what could only be a series of highly profitable matches. The drawing power of the Perry-Vines matches has lessened considerably this season, and a new element is needed to revitalize professional tennis. Budge versus Perry would undoubtedly be a highly successful combination.

BRITAIN HAS BIG CHOICE FOR THE WALKER CUP

But Americans Confident Of Remaining On Top

The Selection Committee appointed by the Royal and Ancient Club to choose a team to represent Great Britain in the Walker Cup match against the United States at St. Andrew's on June 3 and 4 has added to the earlier list of players nominated to take part in trial games at St. Andrew's next month. John Beck has already been appointed captain.

When the original list of 16 was issued surprise was caused by some notable omissions. Now that the names of nine other players have been added some unexpected choices occur in the comprehensive list of 25.

The inclusion of A. Dowie is the chief surprise. He is practically unknown outside St. Andrew's, where he keeps a tobaccoist shop, but he is one of the finest amateur golfers in the city and has won the amateur championship of St. Andrew's for the past three years.

The fact that the Selection Committee has chosen Dowie, James Fitzsimmons, the Irish open amateur champion and steward at the Royal Portrush club, and Charles Slovic, a colliery worker, disposes of the criticism that the choice of British players has been restricted by social position, and that selections have not gone sufficiently far afield.

The inclusion of Harry Bentley, the English champion two years ago, and D. H. R. Martin, a former Oxford Blue, one of the best golfers in the south, remedies what was considered a serious omission from the original list. Ivor Thomas is one of the best left-handed players in the game, and A. A. Duncan, a former Oxford University captain, now in the Welsh Guards, is Army champion and a first-class golfer.

YOUNG PLAYERS

Eric McRuvie has already played in the Walker Cup match, while Lindsay Walker, former boy champion, and McLeod have played for Scotland.

The majority of the nominees are young players who are being tested for a British international match for the first time. It is a bold experiment, which will commend itself to all.

Britain has never yet beaten the United States in this series and advance publicity from America states that this year the "odds should be 1,000 to 1 on the United States."

Only four men who played in the last Walker Cup match, in America two years ago, Hector Thomson, Gordon Peters, Harry Bentley, and John Langley, are included in the comprehensive list.

LEN HARVEY WINS McAVOY'S TITLE ON POINTS

Great Defence Beats Handicap Of Cut Eye

From a Special Correspondent

London, Apr. 8. Len Harvey, hero of several hundred fights, won back the British cruiser-weight title at Harringay Arena last night, but Jack McAvoy, the champion gave him one of the hardest fights of his career.

The verdict on points could not have been by a very large margin. In fact, there were many, both at the ringside and in the far-off seats, who disagreed.

To my mind it was the only decision, for Harvey proved himself too clever a ring general to be beaten by the heavy punching of his rival.

He boxed under the handicap of a badly gashed eye for major portions of the contest. This occurred in the third round and was reopened in almost every subsequent session.

Skillful patching between the rounds saved the injury from becoming too serious while Harvey's cleverness foiled McAvoy's efforts to add to the injury.

CONSTANT ATTACK

McAvoy, as usual, kept up a constant attack, boring in to hit out with tremendous swings and hooks.

Harvey, noted as a left-hand hitter, did not use this hand to the extent expected.

He made greater play with his right than he has ever done before, and this change of tactics went a long way towards gaining him victory.

He drove home his right on many occasions as the champion launched his attack.

One splendid blow at the end of one round almost scored what would have been the only knock down in the fight.

ACCURATE HARVEY

McAvoy never gave up boring in and unleashing blows with both hands, and the fact that Harvey's face was covered in blood bore testimony to his hard hitting.

But a good percentage of his blows were neatly parried or caught on the arms and shoulders, whereas Harvey was much more accurate.

For the first few rounds the challenger boxed on the defensive, but after he had been shaken once or twice he came back at McAvoy fiercely and more than held his own.

By the tenth Harvey increased his efforts, only to find his opponent bringing every artifice of the ring into play and steadily winning the points.

BLUNDER THE F. A. MUST NOT REPEAT

But No Big Change In Team For Berlin

By Arbiters (Frank M. Carruthers)

London, Apr. 13. The England team when they play in Berlin on May 14 may expect to have arrayed against them the combined talent of Germany and Austria.

By this amalgamation Germany may be raised to the position of premier football team in Europe, and the match will probably be harder to win.

Although the English authorities have not yet been officially informed of this arrangement—so far as they are concerned the match is still against Germany—I do not think they will offer any objection to the change of plan.

They are bound to recognize that the Sincelars and the Szekas have been embraced in the realm of German football.

It has not yet been officially decided to include Austrians in the team to oppose England. I am told, however, that it is the intention to play a mixed side against Portugal on April 24, and if the experiment is successful it will be carried out against England.

The doubt seems to be whether the German and Austrian styles can be made to blend.

Kay Was Too Erratic Beaten By Mrs. King

By Stanley N. Doubt

London, Apr. 9. Miss Kay Stammers lost in the semi-final of the women's singles in the Surrey hard-court lawn tennis championship at Richmond Club, S.W., yesterday to Mrs. M. R. King, the Wightman Cup captain, by 6-4, 4-0, 6-8. That was the highlight of the day's play.

Miss Betty Nuthall was beaten by Miss Jean Saunders in the other semi-final by 7-9, 6-2, 3-6. That was a minor surprise.

The final in the men's singles are R. Shaves, who beat J. S. Olliff by 4-0, 6-4, 6-3, and C. E. Malloy, who beat L. Shall by 6-2, 6-0.

The Mrs. King v. Miss Stammers match followed the long three-set match between Miss Saunders and Miss Nuthall, and although this was good in strokes, there was such a monotonous sameness about its character.

Miss Stammers was in one of her erratic moods. At one moment she was lamentably bad, and the next so brilliant that she made Mrs. King look quite an ordinary player. Then just as we thought Miss Stammers could not lose she lapsed again into her erratic mood.

TENACIOUS GAME

On the other hand, Mrs. King played her usual tenacious game, her form varied hardly at all, and her tactics were shrewd.

Miss Stammers, in the opening set was 1-3 down, then in a brilliant burst won four games in a row and the set in the tenth game. Her drop shots were much in evidence, and her volleying superb.

She lost the first three games in the second set, made another come back, and the set level at three all and for all. This time Mrs. King would not be denied, and won the set to square the match.

Mrs. King then went on to win the first four games of the final set, but was caught at four all, in which period Miss Stammers could not go wrong. Level at five all and at 6-5 Miss Stammers survived two match points against her.

Mrs. King won the odd game for 7-6, and Miss Stammers, at 40-15 in the next, tried two drop shots and missed them. Mrs. King kept a perfect length at this stage, and won the game for a very fine match.

and in the follow-on 251, Smith this time claiming four victims for 50.

Requiring 56 runs to win, Middlesex accomplished this with the loss of one wicket.

NORTHANTS v. NOTTS
At Northampton, Nottinghamshire defeated Northamptonshire by eight wickets.

Northants made 154 and 142; (Butler 4 for 22, Staples 4 for 39), and Notts had 233 (Portidge 5 for 77) and 44 for two wickets.—Reuter.

BASEBALL PROGRAMME CURTAILED

Pittsburgh Pirates Slip Up Again

New York, May 9. Rain and cold caused a curtailment in the National American Baseball League matches to-day, three matches being played in the National section and two in the American. Pittsburgh Pirates slipped up again when they took the game to ten innings before losing under a 4-1 defeat of the match was the home run scored by Vincent DiMaggio, a brother of the more famous Joe. Cincinnati Reds improved their position with a 9-4 win over Philadelphia Phillies. They deserved their victory as they connected 14 times for "safeties" against the Phillies' seven. St. Louis Cardinals beat Brooklyn Dodgers by 9-7. Washington Senators had a comfortable victory over the St. Louis Browns, finishing up on the winning end of a 7-1 score. The Boston Red Sox also had things much their own way against Cleveland Indians. Two home runs by Fox and one by Cronin helped things along.

Cincinnati 9 12 1

Great Mile By Schoolboy At The White City Thrilling Half Mile

By J. P. Jordan

London, Apr. 11.

A brilliant mile by A. H. Chivers (Wycliffe), who knocked four-fifths of a second off S. C. Wooderson's record at the corresponding meeting five years ago, stood out as the finest feat accomplished at the Public Schools Challenge Cup meeting which concluded at the White City on Saturday.

Chivers is not unlike the world's record-holder Wooderson, in build and effortless style of running. He allowed D. W. Parks (Ardingly) to take him along until the last lap, when he lengthened his stride, and moving with beautiful rhythm, won easily by 50 yards in 4min. 20sec.

Given normal development, Chivers should be a great mile in a few years' time.

Record was also beaten by a Green (Ampleforth) in the steeplechase, but otherwise the performances were about the average.

The biggest thrill of the afternoon was provided in the half mile, in which A. D. Buckland-Nicks (Berkhamsted) ran a splendidly judged race. After setting the pace he allowed first D. J. Mayall (Lancing) and then C. N. Jupp (Ferne) to tear away in front, and retaining his own final spurt until the last 50 yards, he got home by inches.

FINE QUARTER-MILER

P. A. Sore (Epsom) is a quarter-miler of high promise. For a boy of 16½ years to win two heats on Friday in 53.3sec. and 53sec., and the final on Saturday in 52.3sec. is exceptional.

J. F. Lockwood (Queen Elizabeth's, Barnet) had no difficulty in winning the sprint and long jump for the second successive year and should be heard of again, probably as a long jumper, while the hurdles went to the best stylist, J. M. Tanner (Marlborough).

This was rather an untidy race, as several hurdles were knocked over and Tanner himself was at fault early on, but he deserved his victory.

The weight putting was good and the pole vaulting fair. Salom (Geelong) were weakly represented and lost the Challenge Cup after holding it for two years. Queen Elizabeth's and Kingswood tied for the cup.
